Committee Seeks Right To Formulate Control Of Regained Homeland

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—The American and British governments are understood today to have assured Gen. Charles De Gaulle, president of the French National Liberation committee, that arrangements will be made for the French North African army to participate in the Allied invasion of Europe this year.

These assurances followed concern expressed by De Gaulle that the French army might be denied the opportunity of participating directly in the liberation of France.

De Gaulle feared the French North African army might be relegated to a comparatively minor role in the Mediterranean or the Allied grand assault against Hitler's European fortress this year.

The subject was discussed at the recent meeting in Marrakesh, North Africa, between British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and De Gaulle. The Anglo-American assurances were forthcoming as a result of the meeting.

300,000 Fighting Men

The strength of the French North African army is believed to be about 300,000 men. That was the number for which Gen. Henri Giraud, commander of that army, obtained a promise of American equipment when he was in Washington last July.

The French committee now would like to participate with the United States and Great Britain in the formulation of Allied plans for the control of civil affairs in those parts of metropolitan France which are liberated from the (Continued on Page Two)

FULTON LEWIS LOSES $4,500 IN LIBEL SUIT

BOSTON, Jan. 28—An award of $4,500 had been made today by a federal jury to Louis G. Balsam, of Cambridge, against Fulton Lewis, Jr., radio commentator whom he had sued for $100,000 on a libel charge. The jury deliberated 10 hours.

Lewis, in denying that the statements made in a broadcast a year ago were libelous, claimed they were "substantially true." Balsam, a former professor and dean of men at Reed college, Portland, Ore., was OPA rationing officer in New England.

Americans Starved To Death, Tortured, Slain Brutally By Japanese

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—The War and Navy departments in a joint statement disclosed today that the Japanese "tortured, starved to death and sometimes wantonly murdered" thousands of American and Filipino soldiers who were captured on Bataan and Corregidor. The unprecedented accusations of brutality were based on facts taken from reports of two United States Army colonels and an American Navy commander, who escaped after almost a year in enemy prisoner camps in the Philippines.

A total of 5,200 American soldiers died, mostly of starvation, at two prison camps up to October, 1942, and thousands of Filipinos also succumbed. Many others undoubtedly have died since, although figures were not available.

ATROCITY BULLETINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—Palmer Hoyt, former domestic director of OWI, declared today that most of the 50,000 prisoners taken in the Philippines have been brutally murdered by the Japanese.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—The White House disclosed today that the Japanese government will not permit the American government to send any further medical supplies, food or other aid to fighting men who are now Japanese prisoners of war.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—The story of Japanese murder and torture of American prisoners of war aroused horror in congress today with members calling for redoubled efforts to crush the enemy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—Sen. Bennett Clark (D) Mo., declared today that the atrocities inflicted on American and Filipino soldiers should cause America to refuse to let Japan surrender until we "have bombed hell" out of the Japanese mainland.

House Of Commons Hears Of Thousands Of Deaths In Prison Camps

LONDON, Jan. 28—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden today informed the house of commons of the "grave news" that "some thousands of deaths" have occurred among British prisoners of war and interned civilians in the hands of the Japanese.

He revealed information concerning the extremely bad treatment of the prisoners which resulted in the appalling fatalities.

The foreign secretary said that postal cards received from prisoners "are in terms dictated by the Japanese authorities" and that only now has the British government received knowledge of the true situation.

Information in official British hands, he said, leaves no doubt that the true state of affairs in prison and internment camps in the Far East are far different than the prisoners have been able to depict in their writing.

In Siam alone, he continued, many thousands of British prisoners are "being compelled to live under jungle conditions without (Continued on Page Two)

HOOVER OFFERS POST-WAR PLAN FOR AMERICA

Ex-President Asks Lower Taxes, Encouragement Of Small Business

BUREAUCRACY ATTACKED

Labor And Industry Urged To Recognize Problems And Find Solution

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—Ex-President Hoover offered a plan today for a prosperous post-war America and strongly suggested reduced taxes to encourage the increase of small business as the heart of the nation's economic welfare.

He painted a picture of the kind of America he ventured to suggest that would be welcomed by the returning veterans and all citizens.

Bureaucracy should be killed and private industry permitted to resume the country's production because "government cannot find jobs for any great numbers, unless it is going to transform industry into a full socialized state," he said.

If the government were to take over all industry, he said, "it means a standard of living of about the present Russian level, and that level is as low as any city or agricultural slum in our country."

Hoover assailed in strong language "ardent" government and private groups who "glid with promises" what he called a "background of force and coercion."

"Trojan Horses" "We already have," he said "a large number of Trojan horses labeled falsely 'liberalism' and 'freedom,' but their insides are stuffed with a mixture of totalitarian economics."

One of America's "oldest and most urgent problems," he said, is in the interests of labor and industry. He urged these groups to recognize this as a fact and to solve it for their mutual interests.

"We cannot come through this post-war period to the promised land unless labor leaders exert their immense power to remove restrictions on individual effort and the use of new devices," he declared.

Hoover said federal taxes after the war of 18 to 20 billions annually will be needed to meet our debt, veterans' pensions, unemployment insurance and other government services. To raise these dollars, he said inflation must be (Continued on Page Two)

FATHER STANDS BY TO DEFEND "THE SPIDER"

CHICAGO, Jan. 28—The father of David Joseph Hearne, Jr., 15-year-old high school sophomore accused of sending an extortion note through the mails, announced today he would engage a lawyer and fight the case for his son.

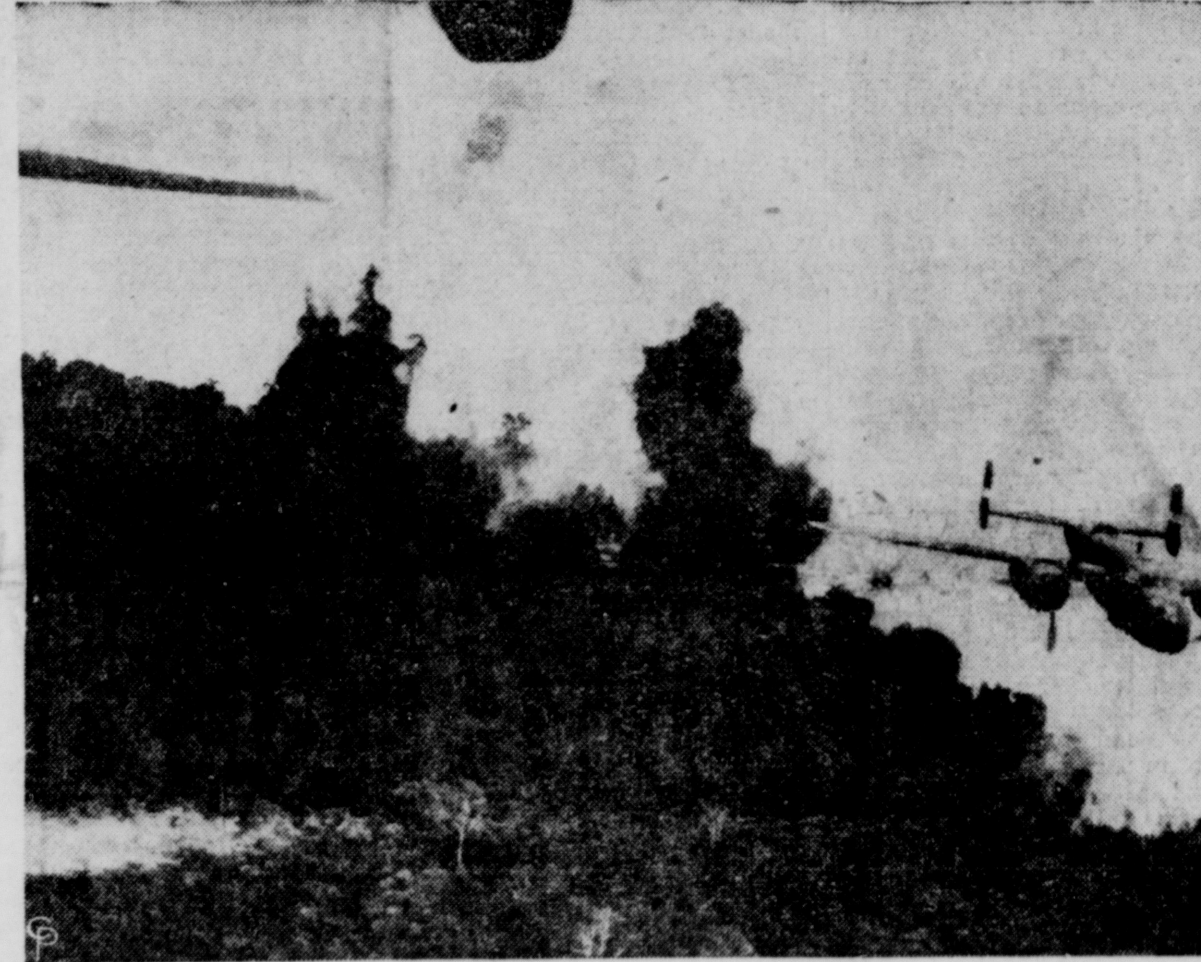

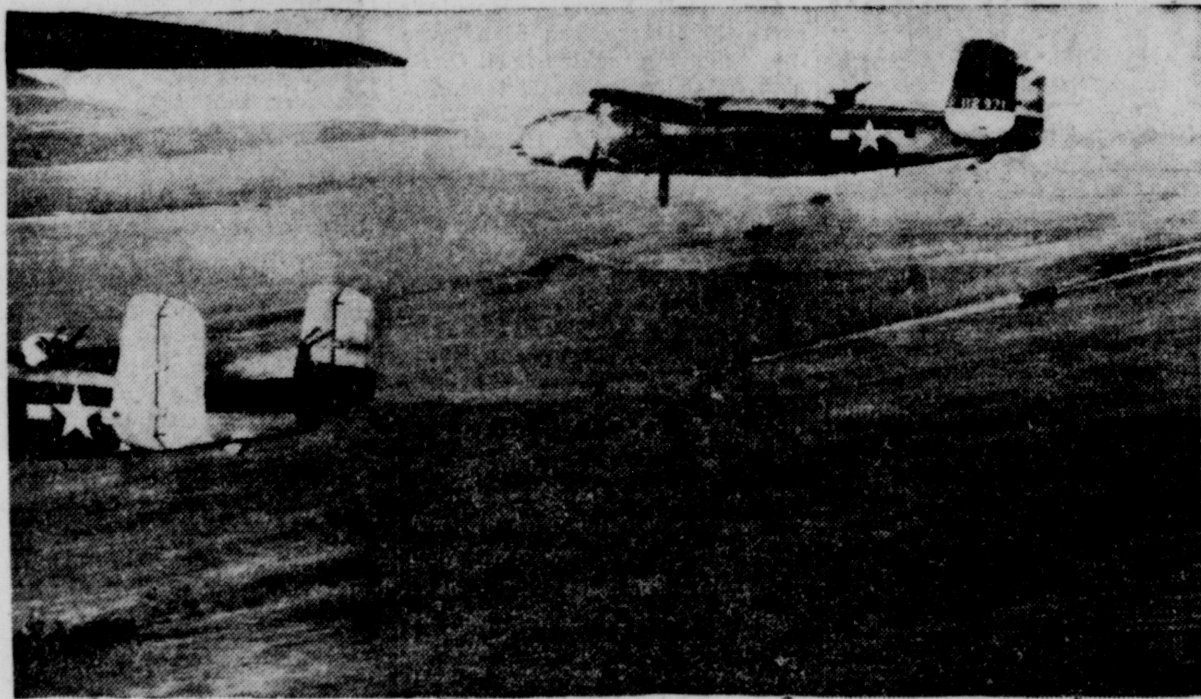

The note, decorated with a sketch of a dripping dagger and signed "The Spider," was sent to Raymond W. Steffen and threatened the death of Steffen and the kidnapping of his young son if $100 was not paid the sender.

Hearne, Sr., assistant general passenger agent for the Illinois Central railroad, said his son had been questioned at least four times by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and had stuck by his story he knew nothing of the note. "I believe him," the father said.

FRANCO MUST MAKE UP MIND

U. S. Decides Time Has Come For Final Showdown On Spain's Aid To Huns

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—Authoritative sources revealed today the United States government has decided to seek a showdown with Spain over that country's continued aid to Nazi Germany.

All oil shipments from the Caribbean area to Spain have been ordered suspended for the month of February as the opening step in strong economic pressure that is going to be brought to bear on Gen. Francisco Franco's regime.

The United States government has decided that the time has come for Spain to make up her mind who is going to be the victor in this war, and to act accordingly.

The British government also is understood to share this view, and a sharp stiffening of Britain's attitude toward Spain likewise is expected.

Washington and London have finally lost patience with Gen. Franco's continued aid to Nazi Germany while Madrid privately professes friendship for the United States and Britain.

Recent Spanish assistance to Germany to which the United States and Britain have taken strong exception include:

1. Conclusion of an agreement under which Spain provided about 40 million dollars credit to Germany in payment for the assistance rendered Franco by the Nazis during the Spanish civil war.
2. Refusal to release Italian ships interned in Spanish ports at the time of Italy's unconditional surrender to the Allies.
3. Failure to bring back from (Continued on Page Two)

KIRK RAISES TOO MUCH WHEAT; U. S. FILES SUIT

McKinley Kirk of New Holland and Washington C. H. was named defendant Thursday in a federal court suit brought by Calvin Crawford, U. S. district attorney, which seeks to enforce wheat marketing provisions of the U. S. department of agriculture.

The suit was filed in U. S. district court in Columbus. The action charges that Kirk raised 1,240.7 bushels of wheat in excess of his marketing quota in 1941. The petition asks a total of $607.94 at a penalty rate of 49 cents a bushel.

Crawford's suit also asks that Kirk be required to file with F. K. Blair, Pickaway county agricultural agent, a farm operator's report on wheat raised during the year, which he is alleged to have refused to do.

The suit is the first filed in this district under the wheat marketing program, no longer in operation under A. A. rules.

GADGET TURNS CHICK FEATHERS INTO GOOD YARN

CHICAGO, Jan. 28—A gadget that will turn chicken feathers into good yarn was among the inventions received by the Chicago office of the Smaller War Plants Corporation, a government agency, it was revealed today by D. W. Walters, the director.

The agency is conducting a display from January 31 through February 3 in the Chicago offices of some 45,000 patented articles seized from Axis nations.

Many of them, it was said, would be of interest to manufacturers planning post-war conversion of their war plants to peace time production.

OPA CUTS POINTS ON VEGETABLES

Bowles Refuses Plea Of Canners For Holiday On Rationing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—Ration point values for all major canned vegetables were scheduled today to drop two to four points in February.

Lowering of the vegetable points was announced by OPA Administrator Chester Bowles who denied the recent request of canners for a point holiday, made on the grounds that home-canned vegetable supplies were so large commercial varieties were not moving.

"The supply of processed food available for rationing is inadequate to meet uncontrolled demand," said Bowles. "The indications are that less will be available for distribution to civilians this year than last."

New values for average-sized cans of vegetables are: asparagus, 12 instead of 14 points; beans, all dry varieties, six instead of 10; fresh shelled beans, six instead of eight; beets, two instead of four; corn, regular, eight instead of 10; corn, vacuum packed, 10 instead of 13; mixed vegetables, eight instead of 12; tomatoes, eight instead of 10. Spinach was raised from its present value of two points to six points.

Removed from the ration list were mushrooms, soy beans and grapefruit.

Canned cranberries and apricots were decreased four points, canned plums and prunes, two points. (Continued on Page Two)

"TERROR RAID," HUNS SCREAM AS CAPITAL BURNS

RAF Sets Pace For Armada Of Daylight Raiders In Continent Attack

NAZIS FALTER IN ITALY

German Counterattacks Fail To Halt Advance South Of Rome

By International News Service
Huge formations of RAF Lancaster bombers pounded Berlin in strength last night, kindling fires visible 200 miles away and setting the pace for armadas of daylight raiders which roared out soon after dawn to give the quaking continent another heavy pasting.

And while the big four-motored Lancasters treated Berlin to its third saturation assault of the new year, other warplanes gave the key defense island of Heligoland its first attack since Gen. Field Marshal Erwin Rommel ordered civilians to evacuate to facilitate "defense against Allied invasion." Secondary objectives in northern France and western Germany also were hit and mines laid in enemy waters, the air ministry announced.

American heavy bombers escorted by fighter planes attacked a military objective in northern France in the daylight hours following the Berlin assault.

City In Flames

Veteran RAF crews returning from the Nazi capital told of watching leaping flames still blazing in gutted Berlin while the big bombers were 200 miles away from the city en route to their home bases. The raiders encountered dense cloud formations all along the route, extending to heights of three miles in some places.

Ground defenses were labeled "not as strong as usual," with enemy commanders apparently relying on packs of interceptors and flare lanes extending out 10 miles from Berlin itself. Thirty-four RAF planes were lost in all operations.

The authoritative British press association estimated that possibly as much as 1,650 American tons of bombs were showered on the seat of Nazidom.

"Terror Raid"

The German radio acknowledged that it was a forceful block-buster raid by crying out that it was a "heavy terror raid," a phrase usually employed when a particularly severe blow has been struck.

Fierce enemy aerial attacks on the Allied bridgehead south of Rome failed today to stem the Anglo-American advance inland, increasing momentarily the threat to Nazi forces in the Minturno-Cassino front.

With patriots inside the Eternal City reportedly engaging in a flurry of hand-to-hand combat with German occupational forces, spearheads of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army probed inland from the Nettuno-Anzio sector against mounting Nazi resistance.

Strong enemy counterattacks were hurled against the British units which repulsed the thrusts and seized many prisoners.

FALSE SPRING FOOLS TREES IN CHICAGO AREA

CHICAGO, Jan. 28—Unseasonably warm weather combined with "Spring rain" left farmers and gardeners of the Chicago area with a major problem today.

While the rain made up for a previous deficiency in moisture, its unseasonable conspiracy with the sun caused tree and shrub buds to swell and fruit vines to blossom.

This was pointed to as a dangerous situation, since a continuation of the warm weather would force the buds to open and leave them subject to the danger of killing frosts.

fray, the Anglo-Americans exacted a heavy toll of the Nazi planes. Furious combat over the Anglo-American beachhead resulted in destruction of 28 Nazi planes. Many of the enemy craft were downed by shore and naval anti-aircraft guns.

Other aerial action over Italy resulted in destruction of more enemy planes, bringing to a record 50 the number of Nazi aircraft downed. Against this figure, an official Allied communiqué revealed that seven Allied planes were missing.

In the Central Pacific, Allied airmen were exacting a heavy toll of Japanese aircraft which sought to stop the latest series of raids on the Marshall Islands. When the U. S. Army carried out five more assaults against the enemy-held archipelago in two days, some 27 Jap planes were destroyed or "probably" downed without the Americans losing a single plane.

And in the Southwest Pacific, the Allies carried out their heaviest raid of the war against the Admiralty Islands and captured the former enemy base at Natano on New Britain.

In Russia, spearheads of the Red Army were within 40 miles of the old Estonian border, while other Soviet troops were reported fighting in the outskirts of Shims, west of Lake Ilmen.

10,000 ATTEND PUBLIC SALE ON MURDER FARM

The Elmer McCoy farm in Fayette county resembled a county fair Thursday when more than 10,000 persons swarmed over the farm during an auction sale of personal property and livestock of the McCoy family. Mr. McCoy, noted Poland China hog breeder; his wife, Forrest, and their daughter, Mildred, were murdered Thanksgiving eve. James Collett, Clinton county, will go on trial February 28 at Washington C. H. for the murders.

W. O. Bumgarner, Jackson township auctioneer, one of two auctioneers who conducted the sale, said the crowd was one of the biggest he had ever seen at a sale.

The sale grossed about $25,000. Property of all sorts, including 84 hogs, personal effects, electric irons which brought as high as $10, an alarm clock which sold for $5.50, a radio, and all other household and personal goods left by the McCoy's were sold at high prices.

The sale was conducted by Dr. J. A. McCoy, brother of the slain Mrs. McCoy, and Collett's wife, a sister of the slain Mr. McCoy.

A grange which served food at the sale disposed of 10,000 huns, 1,400 pounds of sausage, hamburger and hot dogs, and hundreds of pies.

Curious persons were kept out of the barn in which McCoy was shot through the head. Prosecutor John E. Hill declaring that the barn must be kept closed. However, bids were taken on a feed mixer behind which the McCoy body was found.

Eden said their health therefore is rapidly deteriorating.

"A high percentage are seriously ill and there have been some thousands of deaths," he said.

"It is with the deepest regret that I have to make such a statement," the foreign secretary said, "but after consultation with our Allies, who are equally victims of this unspeakable savagery, the government felt it was their duty to make public the facts."

"Let the Japanese government reflect that in time to come the record of their military authorities in this war will not be forgotten."

Eden's statement shocked the house. Many angry comments were heard later in the lobby.

Forecasts were made that the grim announcement will do more than any urgings made heretofore to rouse the country against Japan and insure merciless British prosecution of the Pacific war in conjunction with the United States.

The man in the street who has always regarded Japan as a distant and perhaps vague enemy of very secondary importance to Germany now has been presented with an exact picture of Japanese barbarity through Eden's statement.

Eden said his majesty's government is completely satisfied as to the authenticity of the information "which it is my painful duty to reveal."

He described an eyewitness of the camp in Siam where prisoners are "skin and bones, unshaven, with long matted hair, half-naked, and having no hats or shoes."

The foreign secretary described as "emaciated" the appearance of prisoners in Java. He said the position in Hongkong is "growing worse" and food allowances of prisoners in Hongkong, Formosa and Korea are "inadequate to maintain health."

Eden provided details of Japanese brutality such as the Shanghai police officer who was tortured until he lost 40 pounds in weight and became practically insane, dying within two days. Also referred to were three British civilians who escaped, before being recaptured and flogged, before being sentenced to death. They then were killed as slowly as possible with automatic pistols.

Details likewise were provided of Indian soldiers who following their capture were lined up beside a road, tied and then systematically bayoneted to death.

He would continue high estate taxes in the higher brackets "to prevent inheritance of economic power and the making of playboys." He would lower all income taxes, especially in middle and lower brackets. He would take off all capital-gain taxes to encourage new enterprise. And he said that corporations should be permitted immediately to set up tax-free reserves for reconversion and war obsolescence.

He would plan how to reconvert war industry as soon as Hitler is beaten for he said our whole production is not needed to beat Japan.

Hoover said that since "no bureaucracy will ever abolish itself" congress should have ready a joint committee to liquidate war restrictions after the war, gradually to retard inflation until production catches up with demand.

War-torn Europe will offer the American farmer a continuous market, he said, for at least two years after firing ceases. He suggested that the farmer create more crops for industrial use than for food since mechanization of the farm has reduced the need of animal food.

He said we could use 6 million new homes now and he asked labor to take restrictions off factory-built homes to make a house as easy to buy on the installment plan as an automobile.

an American prisoner unconscious beside the road.

Go Without Food

"Our guards repeatedly promised us food, but never produced it. Totally done in, American and Filipino prisoners fell out frequently, and threw themselves moaning beside the roadside."

"At three o'clock on the morning of April 12 (two days after the march began) they shooed us into a barbed-wire bull pen big enough to accommodate 200. We were 1,200 inside the pen—no room to lie down, human filth and maggots were everywhere."

Dyess added that the Japs then gave them the "sun treatment," forcing them to sit under its broiling rays all day with virtually no water.

"Our thirst was intense," he continued. "Many of us went crazy and several died. The Japanese dragged out the sick and delirious. Three Filipino and three American soldiers were buried while still alive."

The following day the prisoners were given a handful of rice, the sun torture was resumed and at nightfall the march was started again. Natives who sought to toss food and cigarettes to the prisoners were beaten by the Japs.

On April 15 they were marched to a railroad and 115 were crowded in one small boxcar. Dyess said the "heat and stench were unbearable." On the last leg of the journey, by foot, the strong were permitted to support the weak.

"I made that march of about 85 miles in six days on one mess kit of rice," Dyess said. He reported that others made the march in 12 days without any food whatever.

McCoy and Melnik were taken prisoner on Corregidor and did not take part in this "march of death." The Corregidor survivors were marched through Manila on May 23, 1942 after being forced to jump from barges while still 100 yards from shore.

Terrific Death Rate

The army and navy statement revealed that after the prisoners had been at Camp O'Donnell for one week, the death rate among American soldiers was 20 a day and among Filipinos 150 a day. After two weeks it increased to 50 a day among Americans and 500 a day among Filipinos.

"To find men strong enough to dig graves was a problem," the statement added. "Shallow trenches were dug to hold 10 bodies each. Men shrank from 200 pounds to 90. They had no skeletons. They were human butrequently the prisoners were given the sun treatment, and those strong enough were forced into labor details. Many times men did not return from work."

In June the Americans and Filipinos were separated and the former were taken to Cabanatuan concentration camp on Luzon. At one time three American officers attempted to escape but were captured.

"Their Japanese captors beat them about the feet and legs till they could no longer stand," the statement added, "then killed the officers and jumped on them."

"The next morning the three Americans, stripped to their shorts, were taken out on the road in full view of the camp, their hands were tied behind them and

Nazis. This matter is being given active consideration by the American and British governments.

De Gaulle also is understood to have taken up with Churchill the question of arming the French underground movement.

The impression has been given in French circles that the United States and Britain were reluctant to arm the underground for fear of civil war in France following its liberation.

It can be said on high authority that such is not the case. Military and not political considerations have been responsible for the reluctance of the American and British authorities to supply arms in substantial quantities to the French underground.

The Anglo-American military chiefs have questioned the advantage of taking the steps which would be necessary to arm the underground on a large scale.

However, there may be some change in the situation soon. In any event, it will come as no surprise to informed Washington sources if the underground warfare in France reaches an unprecedented peak in the near future.

Some reports received in Washington indicate the Germans may be planning to launch a systematic quasi-military campaign to smash the French underground before the all-out Allied invasion of western Europe gets under way.

WAR BOND SALE STEPPED UP BY CITY BOOSTERS

Sale of War Bonds in Circleville and Pickaway county in the Fourth War Loan is being stepped up with bankers in Circleville and in the county's villages devoting most of their time to handling bond sale detail work.

Clark Will, county chairman, said Friday that he has been so busy with War Bond work the last few days that he has not had time to add up the amount collected since Monday. At the end of the first day, $22,000 was reported collected by solicitors.

Since that time, though, the tempo of sales has been increased continuously.

Efforts are being made to collect the Circleville quota of $279,000 in the next few days. The county goal is $1,244,000.

*When you go home tonight...
think of a boy who never will...*

THINK OF HIM—and ask yourself this question: Which of you—this boy or yourself—could more truthfully have said today: "I'm sorry—I've done all I can"?

To that, there is only one answer. For no sacrifice any of us made this day can ever begin to measure up to his final and supreme sacrifice—his very life.

So, when we're asked to buy an extra $100

War Bond this month—over and above what we'd been planning to buy—how can we find it in our hearts to say, "I'm sorry—I've done all I can!"

Think it over—and help get this war over sooner by doing your share.

Buy an extra $100 War Bond tomorrow! At least $100. Better $200, $300, or even $500. You can afford it.

Let's all BACK THE ATTACK!

OPEN LETTERS

TO EVERY AMERICAN

PATRIOTS: Residents of Pickaway county are being called on to buy $1,244,000 in War Bonds during the Fourth War Loan campaign. The drive lasts to mid-February and the national goal is $14,000,000,000.

The quota set for the county is a little less than in the third sale. The quota should, and must, be reached.

The money is here. It is not being put to use if it is stored away, and it ought to be put in government bonds.

It is up to individuals to buy the sum asked this time.

There are three indisputable reasons why these individuals should use the money in their pockets, their hiding places at home, and their checking accounts to help finance the war.

As the amount of money in circulation increases, the supplies of civilian goods are being depleted rapidly. This increases the peril of inflation, which is another way of saying the value of the money will be less—that it will buy less. It means that money spent in an inflationary period will not bring as much return as it would after the war, when the supply of money and of goods is more in balance, and that the more that is spent now the faster the money will drop.

Secondly, reconversion slowdowns and their resultant unemployment are not too far ahead. It is a good time to invest earnings safely—to prepare for a rainy day.

Thirdly, the more that is invested in War Bonds the less will be the need for additional taxes, which are designed to finance the war and to hold down inflation. That will be a good argument about March 15.

And as another war bond campaign starts, The Herald would like to repeat something it has said before, many times in fact. That is, that the workers who have enlisted in this campaign of sales of War Bonds are doing so wholly out of patriotic interest. You are not doing them a favor by buying, and certainly no one should purchase bonds reluctantly.

It seems to us that every individual who can raise the money to buy one or more bonds should step forward willingly and quickly and purchase them with the least amount of effort on the part of the salespeople. It should not be necessary to "run you down" to get your signature and your check. Save the time of the hard working salespeople by buying quickly and to the limit of your ability.

It would seem unnecessary to point out to Pickaway county people that War Bonds are the safest and best investment on this earth. No matter how you deplore waste of money, money that ought to be used strictly for the war effort and nothing else, no matter what objection you try to find to the purchase of the bonds, you still owe it to your country and the brave boys and girls who are fighting for you to buy bonds, and as many as you can finance.

It is a poor time to bring up any objections, with the war well on the way to being won; the war has to be financed, and the boys and girls have to be backed up at home and your purchase of bonds is the only way you can do it.

Let us hope that the Pickaway county quota will be quickly reached; that our people will come forward as one and say "Here is every dollar I can spare to buy bonds; in buying, I am doing my patriotic duty, it is true, but at the same time I am helping myself, for there is no other place to put the money where it will be as safe. You don't have to hunt me up, or to waste your time, I'm buying early and getting my name checked off your list, Mr. Committeeman."

Buy early, buy to the limit of your ability!

Let it not be said that Pickaway county this time failed to reach its goal.

CIRCUITEER.

TO DAIRY EMPLOYEES

FOLK: You did a very nice job this week when you made a $50 contribution to the Junior Chamber of Commerce to help it in its promotion of Ted Lewis Recreation Center. You didn't put any strings on your gift, you just turned it over to the Jaycees to use at the playground for whatever purpose the organization wished. It was a splendid gesture, and it will be appreciated by the youngsters who enjoy the playground during the Summer and by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Many thanks.

CIRCUITEER.

TO C. OF C. MEMBERS

ALL: Your annual meeting is scheduled Tuesday evening, and it promises to be a highly interesting one. Reports of the Chamber's projects during the last year, other reports, a splendid talk by George O'Brien of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, and other matters of interest are on the schedule. All members of the Chamber of Commerce and their wives should be present. A telephone call to Mack Parrett, secretary, will provide a reservation for you.

CIRCUITEER.

TO FARM LEADERS

OFFICIALS: Many factors point toward additional farm machinery and other equipment being made available for you in order to help you carry on your 1944 Food for Freedom program. On the other hand, if Uncle Sam's army or navy need extra equipment of the type that requires steel and bearings and other items that go into farm goods, then you will have to get along with a smaller supply of goods. Already the percentage of 1941 production which manufacturers are permitted to build for you has been reduced by 20 percent. It is now 60 percent of the 1941 amount. The navy issued a great order for landing craft after the 80 percent figure was arrived at. If more landing craft is needed, or if other things are needed for the services, the farm machinery will probably be cut again. Many items left on the ration list last year have been cut off for 1944; some of the goods for which you needed a certificate a year ago can now be bought ration free, if you can find it. I hope that sufficient machinery will be provided to permit you to carry on your Food for Freedom program without any hindrances.

Gallbladder Useful As A Storehouse

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE ORGANS we house within our body might be compared to our relatives. There are all kinds of relatives and all kinds of organs. The regular hardworking kind—the heart is representative of him, works all his life and never gives any trouble until he is old or something very considerable annoys him. The artistic, excitable, moody, flighty one—the brain surely. The silent one that never, or almost never, gives any trouble—the spleen.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Then there is the problem relative—useless, lazy, always making trouble—certainly the gallbladder is the analogy for him.

The gallbladder practically never troubles itself on our consciousness unless it has decided to go on a spree. Then, no matter what else we are doing or what we want to do, we have to get up and put on our clothes and go down to the police station and bail him out. And a sorry looking dejected bum he is at such times—full of bile and venom and with a hangover you could cut with a knife.

Function of Gallbladder

Lots of people get along well without the gallbladder—glad to get it out of the house, never knew what genuine comfort was until it was gone.

Is the gallbladder of any use at all? Does it perform any useful function?

There is always somebody to stand up for the black sheep of the family. Let us see if anything favorable can be said for the gallbladder.

The liver, one of the largest and busiest organs of the body, has many functions, not the least of which is the formation of bile, which is carried by a series of ducts to the intestine where it is employed chiefly in the digestion of fats.

Nature, like any thrifty person, guards against the rainy day. The liver is larger than it need be and produces more bile than we can ordinarily use. So it provides also a storehouse for the extra bile which can be called on when needed—and that storehouse is the gallbladder.

Observing It Work

It is possible to give a person a dye by mouth which is concentrated in the gallbladder and which will cast a shadow on the X-ray plate. So we can watch it at work. As soon as a meal gets into the intestine, especially a fat meal, the gallbladder contracts and empties its contents into the intestine.

So a physician, if he wants to drain the gallbladder by Nature's method, gives the patient a high-fat meal. If he wants to soothe it and keep it quiet he gives a fat-free meal.

When the gallbladder has been removed surgically the main bile duct usually swells up and takes the place of the reservoir for bile the gallbladder once was.

Whenever there is any stagnation in Nature trouble is likely to breed. And in between meals the still quiet gallbladder full of bile is a fine spot for an infection to light. This may cause simple inflammation, or produce mucous around a bit of which a gallstone may form.

But the actions of the gallbladder raising Cain deserves an account by itself which we will give soon.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. E.:—How important is it to keep on a diet for diabetes? Should you stick to diet only or must every diabetic use insulin?

Answer:—It depends on how severe the diabetes is. I should say that 60 per cent of all diabetics can get along on diet alone. But if you can't get enough nourishment through diet, use insulin so you can eat more. But diet is still the basis of diabetic treatment. How important— it depends on whether you think life or death is important.

E. K.:—What is a blue baby? What is the life expectancy of such a child?

Answer: A blue baby is cyanotic from a congenital defect of the heart. Dr. White, of Boston, reported a case of a man with such a defect who lived to be age of 67, but most of the cases do not reach 30.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

MALLORY laughed so hard, when Carlos said that he and Manuella did not trust John and William Smith, that her guests were puzzled. The brown eyes of her two Mexican friends and the shrewd blue ones of Sandy rested upon the blond girl with unblinking stares. She did not blame them; hysteria was predominant in the sound of her intense amusement.

Prism entered with the Bacardi cocktails, passed them hurriedly to the guests, then stopped beside her mistress. "Take one!" she commanded softly.

Manuella lifted her glass. "To our North American friends."

"And to our Latin-American ones," added Sandy, with an easy grace.

Manuella's glance rested on his face while she took the first sip of her drink. But Carlos' glance rested on Mallory's face, making everything she decided gratefully, just about perfect.

Thankful for the cocktail Prism had shoved into her hand, Mallory took a deep sip. It steadied her. She was searching her mind for a suitable and safe topic when her accompanist addressed her.

"Tell us, Pet, just why were you bubbling like demented Dinorah a minute ago? Who are these strange brothers who cause such commotion?"

Mallory did not get a chance to answer. The somewhat stunned silence of both Manuella and Carlos came to an end.

"They are social climbers," said the Mexican girl, scathingly. Her beautiful olive face showed horror.

"They are the aspirin salesmen," said Carlos, who for him was unusually fast English, "with too much money to be only the aspirin salesmen."

Manuella leaned forward. "They make mysterious trips."

"Yes," echoed Carlos, excitedly, "they are the most suspicious characters."

"They are murderers," Mallory Baker's voice was so calm that it held a clamminess.

Once again her three guests were spellbound. Sandy recovered first. "Mallory dear," he hastened gently, "this is not the time for jokes. Your friends do not understand your deadpan humor as I do. Miss—"

He grewed helplessly toward the young Mexican girl, but continued to speak to the singer. "You did not tell me the last names of your guests, so I shall call them Manuella and Carlos."

In spite of her perturbation, Manuella took time for a fleet smile and to say, "I want you to call me Manuella."

Carlos said nothing. His eyes were wide as he watched his hostess. She, in turn, watched the rim of her cocktail glass.

"Take it easy with the kidding, Mallory. Your guests are serious."

"And so am I," the blond girl finished her drink and clasped her hands tightly. "It is true, Sandy."

Carlos' handsome features were thoughtful. "Yes, it could be so possible. They are cruel men."

"We know so well," seconded Manuella. "They managed an invintion to our rancho. We were having dozens over a week-end. My father caught John abusing one of our horses." She smiled, a distinctly unpleasant smile. "I think my father would have liked, right then, to do a little murder himself. But he did not. He waited until that evening, when all his guests were assembled in the patio for the before-dinner wine. Then, in front of everyone, he told John Smith to leave and to take his brother with him. Imagine the insult. Dismissed! He thieving servants. The look John gave my father!" She drew her fingers along her olive-white arm. "It made me feel as if a snake were crawling right here."

The memory made her shudder. "I could not help being a bit sorry for William. He skulked like a craven dog."

"You would not have felt sorry for him," said Mallory. "If you could have seen him helping his brother smash a man's head against the pavement."

"No!" cried Sandy. "Who's kidding now?" derided the singer.

Neither Manuella nor Carlos appeared surprised. Instead, they were intent, motionless except for raising and lowering the glasses which Prism refilled often enough to hear most of the conversation. It's morbidity delighted her. "Now we're getting somewhere," her look proclaimed. Even also in her behavior was approval of "Velvet Name." She fairly hovered over him.

The reluctance to talk about her experience on the Laredo-Monterrey highway—a reluctance put there so recently by Richard Blythe—faded as Mallory realized she had found her allies. She had known she would. She had felt it intuitively, despite the abuse of her maid. And now here was the solution to her problem. What better assistance could she have than these new friends who already hated and suspected the two cement-faced brothers?

In a low, but full voice, the blond girl began relating the story of the murder, exactly as she had thought it, exactly as it had gone through her mind in an endless chain of gruesome pictures. While she talked, Prism quietly served dinner on the long, low table in front of the davenport and on those beside the large armchairs. The four ate without paying much attention. Any other time Prism would have resented this disregard for her superb cooking. Tonight she did not mind.

Except for exclamations of surprise and horror, Mallory was not interrupted until Prism served black coffee and chartrreuse.

Carlos was the first to speak. "You are in danger, Mallory." His voice held such worry that it sounded like pain. In those few words was such proof of his devotion that Mallory felt her cheeks flame as if she were sitting before a fireplace. Manuella noticed also; the muscles around her eyes tightened as she alternated fast glances between Carlos and her hostess.

"She can't be," cried Sandy. "It is too incredible."

"Yes, she is," snapped the Mexican girl. "For Mallory to try to deceive these friends, I am certain they mistrust her pretended ignorance. She must not make the mistake of trying to outwit them; they are too treacherous. Nothing must happen to Mallory. I like her too much."

"Now I've heard everything," mused the blond girl. But she managed, through her amazement, to smile gently at Manuella.

"You see, Sandy," prompted the Mexican girl, "this is so much a desolate country. In a plane you do not see it as you do on land. Perhaps a body would not be found for days, if ever. As for blood spots along the road—what are they? From some goat or burro."

The pianist nodded, then turned to Mallory. "You do get in the darkest messes, Pet."

"Ah," breathed Carlos, "but we are going to help her out of this."

"Yes," Manuella's eyes sparkled even more than they did ordinarily. "Their strange actions, their trips, the vague, almost untraceable rumors about them. Now we are learning. Since the episode at the rancho, Carlos and I have stalked them in an amateurish way. Now we shall attend to it professionally. Now that I know they are dangerous—with the hatred they have for my father—I cannot wait to see them behind bars."

"Please, Manuella," the singer insisted. "I want you to wait. Just until after Wednesday, when they will be back."

"And when Richard Blythe will be back also," she was thinking. But Richard Blythe was back sooner. It was almost midnight when Mallory saw him in an upper hallway of the Montezuma.

Nazi Surrender in Italy
Improbable but Possible

Army, Navy Airmen Ponder
Who'll Sock Tokyo Next?

Special to Central Press

● WASHINGTON—Rumors swarm like phantom bombers in the wake of the forthcoming cross-channel offensive to smash Hitler in 1944 and end the war in Europe.

Fundamentally, the forthcoming blow is perhaps the most widely-publicized projected military operation in history.

There is no doubt in the minds of most Washington observers that the Allied armies of liberation will sweep across the English channel when the stage is set for the mammoth drama of blood, sweat and tears—and, incidentally, the weather is right.

That was the commitment made to Marshal Josef Stalin at the Teheran conference.

The attendant armada of rumors includes one that the Germans may permit their front in Italy to collapse in order to bring the Anglo-American armies into Berlin before the Russians arrive.

It is no secret that the Germans would go to almost any extreme to keep the Red armies off the soil of the Reich.

However, any such German desire is doomed to be frustrated by the unity of the Allied—American, British, Russian—forces.

Therefore, the dopesters and arm chair generals in Washington say, Germany's only alternative would be to collapse the Italian front and possibly the cross-channel front when it is opened.

There is just enough logic, from the Teutonic point of view, in the rumor to make it not impossible in a warring, topsy-turvy world of impossible developments.

Spring and summer will tell the story.

● AIRMEN IN WASHINGTON are wondering whether the Army

Air Corps or the Navy will be the first to carry out the long-promised bombing of the Japanese mainland—expected sometime this year.

Both the Army and Navy, bombsites cocked for Tokyo, shared honors for the original bombing of the Japanese capital in April, 1942.

The twin-engined Army B-25 (Mitchell) bombers that carried out the raid were ferried within striking distance of Hirohito's palace aboard the aircraft carrier Hornet.

Since the Navy has been rushing to completion mighty aircraft carriers, and from their decks are flying long-range fighters, torpedo bombers and dive bombers.

Meanwhile, the Army has pinned its hopes on the B-29, a new super bomber version of the Flying Fortress, which Gen. H. H. Arnold, Air Corps commander, said would get into action this year. The Japanese radio has offered no answer to this question. Recently it warned its listeners that they could be bombed by carrier-based planes.

Later it warned that Japanese cities would be bombed from the Aleutians by long-range planes.

Army and Navy airmen don't care which branch of the service gets the next crack at Tokyo.

Their attitude is "the more the merrier—the sooner the better."

● POLITICAL OBSERVERS SEE LITTLE CHANCE that congress will grant President Roosevelt's state-of-the-Union request for a national service law.

The chances seem pretty strong that the Austin national service bill will die in the senate military committee, where hearings have been begun.

Foreshadowing the doom of the measure offered by Senator Warren R. Austin (R.) of Vermont, is Chairman Robert R. Reynolds (D.), North Carolina, of the committee.

Reynolds is an arch foe of the bill, which he says "would give us here in America what Hitler and Stalin have got."

If the measure ever reaches the floor, one of the bitterest legislative battles of all time will be precipitated.

Miss Southward closed her interesting talk by telling the club members, "Not only can every club help immeasurably in each local community in conserving manpower and women power for war power, but they can at the same time develop a safety consciousness and safety habits for the days of peace that are ahead. Jesus Uses His Power to Help

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 30 is Mark 4:35-5:43, the Golden Text being Mark 4:40, "Why are ye fearful? have ye not yet faith?")

JESUS HAD been teaching the multitudes on the shore of the Sea of Galilee, outside of Capernaum. After the people had gone, He and His disciples got into boats and started across the sea.

"And there arose a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the ship, so that it was now full." Jesus was tired, and had lain Him down in the back of the ship and was fast asleep on a pillow.

His disciples were terrified, thinking they would all be drowned, so they awoke Him, saying, "Master, carest Thou not that we perish?" The "Lord arose and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm."

Jesus then said to His disciples, "Why are ye so fearful? how is it that ye have no faith? But they were frightened and said to one another, 'What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey Him?'"

Man Possessed by Demons
When they landed on the other side of the sea, "into the country of the Gadarenes," they saw a man who was possessed of an unclean spirit—in fact, a number of spirits. He was completely insane, and so strong that no one could restrain him. He had often been bound with strong fetters, but he broke them all, even chains, and wandered among the mountains and tombs, crying and cutting himself with stones.

This pitiable creature no sooner saw Jesus than he ran to Him and worshipped Him, although at the same time he cried—'or the demons within him did—'What have I to do with Thee, Jesus, thou Son of the Most High? I adjure Thee, by God, that thou torment me not.'

Jesus ordered the evil spirits to come out of him and asked the man his name. "My name is Legion," he answered, "for we are many." The Roman Legion was the Roman instrument of oppression in Palestine. The spirits entered Jesus to send them into the bodies of a great herd of swine that was feeding near by. Jesus gave permission, as the soul of this man was surely of more value than the swine, and the spirits entering into their bodies, the swine ran down a slope headlong into the sea and were drowned.

The owners or caretakers of the swine were frightened, and moreover they were angry about the loss of the pigs, and they asked Jesus to go away. Jesus and the disciples prepared to recross the sea in their boat, but the man who was healed came to Him and pleaded to be taken with them. Jesus, however, told him to go home and tell his friends of the miracle.

Ruler Asks Help

When they landed on the other side of Galilee, one of the rulers of the synagogue came quickly to Him and fell at His feet. His name was Jairus, and he said, "My little daughter lieth at the point of death: I pray Thee, come and lay Thy hands on her, that she may be healed; and she shall live."

Not all the leaders of the synagogue were Jesus' enemies, you see. This man believed and had faith. As Jesus followed the ruler, a woman who had been ill many years and steadily grew worse, came near to Him and timidly touched His garment, saying to herself, "If I may touch but His clothes, I shall be whole." At once she felt her illness leave her.

Jesus felt "virtue" go out of Him, and He turned and asked who had touched Him. The disciples, seeing the crowd around, could not answer, but the woman came, trembling, and fell at His feet, telling Him all. "And He said unto her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace, and be whole of thy plague."

Just then some came from the ruler's house and said the little girl was dead, but Jesus said to the father, "Be not afraid, only believe." When He came to the house he said to those within, including professional mourners, "Why make ye this ado? the damsel is not dead, but sleepeth."

They laughed at Him, but, taking only the father, mother and three disciples, He went into the room and, taking the child by the hand, He said, "Damsel, I say unto thee, arise." And straightway the child walked, for she was 12 years old, and Jesus told them not to tell anyone, but to get her something to eat. Truly, in this lesson, Jesus uses His power to help.

"The Authority on Authorities"

THREE KINDS OF TRICKS
IN THE play for a No Trump contract, there are really only two ways to take tricks. One is with the highest card of a suit played on a trick and the other is with an established card, after the rest of its suit is gone. In a suit contract, there is one more way, ruffing with either the only trump on a trick or the highest trump. Normal order of events, when all factors are present in a suit contract, is to do some ruffing first, drop the outstanding trumps next, then use the high and established cards of some side suit or suits.

As soon as the response of 5-Hearts to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps showed South that North held two aces, that fact, plus what he already knew about the six-four division and the general strength of North's hand from the 3-Hearts force, was enough to cause his grand slam bid.

West's lead of the heart K, giving South his first look at the dummy, made it clear that he must use all of the standard ways to take tricks, without any fancy business to make it possible. He had to get rid of a losing heart, which could be parked on a spade, but he also had to divest himself of two losing diamonds, which could be done only by ruffing them with North's two trumps.

Notice how he went after ruffs first, trumps second and suit third. Winning the opener with the heart A, he laid down the diamond A, ruffed the 3, led to the spade Q, ruffed the diamond 6, came to his hand again with the spade J, hoping neither defender originally had a spade singleton, then dropped trumps in three rounds. The spade 2 to the A and then the K enabled him to discard the heart 8, leaving trumps for the last two tricks. Changing the order of events at all would have made his contract impossible.

"Archie" Gardner's new song, "Leave Us Face It, We're In Love," has Bob Crosby worried. While Bob has always tried to impress his girl guests with his vocal talents, Les has had to rely on his knowledge of Shakespeare and his fellow authors. Bob is afraid he may have to go back to his books to even the score.

Health Association To Expand Activities During Year

SALE OF SEALS PROVIDES CASH BEYOND GOAL

Elizabeth Dunlap Again Elected To Serve As Unit Secretary

CAMPAIGN SETS RECORD

Mrs. Crites Files Report On Collections Made In All Communities

Declaring that work of the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health association will be carried on during 1944 in a greatly expanded manner, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap, the organization's executive secretary, informed members of the association at their annual meeting Thursday that the 1943 Christmas seal campaign was the most successful ever conducted here.

The association has received $2,338.17 with more money still to be sent in. This total is $538.17 above the goal of $1,800 established when the drive opened just before Christmas.

"The Tuberculosis and Health association," Miss Dunlap said Friday, "expresses sincere thanks and appreciation to all the city and township volunteer workers. Without their loyal support the seal sale would not have been so successful."

Miss Dunlap said there are about 500 letters still outstanding and she added that it is possible that some of the persons who have forgotten their Christmas health seals or who have delayed sending in their money will do so.

The executive secretary, who was employed for another year, said that added interest in the work being done by the organization had resulted in the splendid increase in purchases. She pointed out that many contributors had doubled their usual contributions. "This means," she told members of the association, "that we can carry on a more extensive program in 1944."

The association's budget for work in 1944 includes $800 for tuberculosis work in the city and county; $200 for Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, for use in health and nutrition work in the county; $200 for Mrs. Mae M. Groom, city health nurse, for health and nutrition work in Circleville; $250 in the general expense account, and $783.72 in an unanticipated emergency fund.

The budget was set up after all outstanding bills were paid.

Collection of the $2,338.17 was almost equally divided in city and county areas, Circleville purchases of health stamps totaling $1,186.86 and rural purchases amounting to $1,151.31.

Mrs. George L. Crites headed the Circleville seal sale committee, while each township had its chairman.

The report of collections from each village and township, as compiled by Miss Dunlap, follows.

THREE SPEAKERS ON PROGRAM OF ROTARY CLUB

Three interesting talks were heard Thursday noon by Circleville Rotarians, speakers including Corporal Lawrence Gridlein of Baltimore, Md., a patient at Fletcher General hospital, Cambridge; Charles W. Peters, Institute speaker, and F. K. Blair, Pickaway county extension agent.

Corporal Gridlein, wounded several times in North African fighting, appeared in the interest of War Bond purchases, urging Rotarians to support the war effort by buying bonds. He discussed some of the engagements in which he participated, including Kasserine Pass, Mateur, and many other battles during the drive that sent Rommel out of North Africa. The soldier, who appeared during the week at Institute programs, also discussed the hospital care given wounded men, and the value of plasma provided by the Red Cross through its blood bank operation.

CORPORAL AMEY FINDS GRAVE OF HERO BROTHER

Mr. Peters, a humorist and philosopher, proved highly entertaining with his talk, many amusing incidents being recounted.

Mr. Blair gave Rotarians information concerning the value of Farm Institutes in the community, outlining the work done in these meetings.

Corporal Edward Amey, husband of the former Eloise Hanley of Circleville, has informed his wife that he has located the grave of his brother, Lt. Col. Herbert Amey, 31, of the U. S. Marine Corps who lost his life in the invasion of Tarawa in the Gilbert Islands.

Corporal Amey, who is stationed in the Gilbert Islands in the U. S. army air corps, told his wife that he had found his brother's grave.

Lt. Col. Amey, whose wife and baby live in San Diego, Cal., and whose parents live in Ambler, Pa., was killed November 20. He had served nine years in the Marine Corps, being attached to the Second Marine Division at the time of the invasion.

Amey at 31 was one of the youngest lieutenant colonels in the Marines.

Lt. Col. Amey saw his first service in China, returning from that station in 1939. His only visit in Circleville was a brief one overnight when he was enroute to his Ambler home from the west coast.

NEPHEW OF CITY WOMAN HELD PRISONER BY HUNS

Staff Sergeant Glenn J. Lawhorn, 22, of Chillicothe, a nephew of Mrs. E. W. Keyes, East Main street, is a prisoner of war in Germany. The soldier's mother, Mrs. Dora Lawhorn, Chillicothe, received a notice from the War Department Thursday that young Lawhorn, missing since December 12, was taken prisoner when his bomber went down over the Reich.

Last word received directly from young Lawhorn, a gunner, was in a letter dated December 9, just four days before his ship was put out of action.

BROWN STAMPS EXPIRING

Circleville householders were reminded Friday that brown ration stamps R, S, T and U in War Ration Book 3 expire at midnight Saturday. The stamps are good for purchase of meat, cheese, butter and fats. Brown V stamp is now valid and W becomes valid Sunday. Both stamps expire February 26.

MRS. SOPHIA K. ANDERSON DIES AT DUNLAP HOME

Mrs. Sophia Koenig Anderson, 76, died Thursday at 11:30 p. m. at the home of Floyd Dunlap, 478 North Court street. Pneumonia caused death. Mrs. Anderson was an aunt of the late Mrs. Floyd Dunlap.

A native of Pomeroy, O., she was born September 27, 1867, a daughter of Valentine and Eliza-both Diehl Koenig. Her husband, Frank, preceded her in death. Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Prose, 144 Pleasant street, and Mrs. Christina Greuser of Pittsburgh; two brothers, Henry King of Columbus and William Koenig of Worthington, and one son, Kenneth W. Anderson of East Liverpool.

The body was prepared for burial by E. F. Schlegel, Ashville, and shipped to East Liverpool for funeral services and burial.

LOOTERS OF HOUSE CAR LECTURED AND RELEASED

Six Commercial Point youngsters who admit looting a house car owned by Harry Wilbarger of Columbus, formerly of Commercial Point, were released Thursday by Judge Lemuel Welton after they were lectured. The judge decided that neither of the boys had been in his court previously, and agreed that they should be returned home without penalty. Numerous articles taken from the Wilbarger house car were returned by the youths.

YANK, BRITISH LEADERS ALLAY DE GAULLE FEAR

North African Force Of 300,000 Men Ready To Strike At Boche

Committee Seeks Right To Formulate Control Of Regained Homeland

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—The American and British governments are understood today to have assured Gen. Charles De Gaulle, president of the French National Liberation committee, that arrangements will be made for the French North African army to participate in the Allied invasion of Europe this year.

These assurances followed concern expressed by De Gaulle that the French army might be denied the opportunity of participating directly in the liberation of France.

De Gaulle feared the French North African army might be relegated to a comparatively minor role in the Mediterranean of the Allied grand assault against Hitler's European fortress this year. The subject was discussed at the recent meeting in Marrakesh, North Africa, between British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and De Gaulle. The Anglo-American assurances were forthcoming as a result of the meeting.

300,000 Fighting Men

The strength of the French North African army is believed to be about 300,000 men. That was the number for which Gen. Henri Giraud, commander of that army, obtained a promise of American equipment when he was in Washington last July.

The French committee now would like to participate with the United States and Great Britain in the formulation of Allied plans for the control of civil affairs in those parts of metropolitan France which are liberated from the (Continued on Page Two)

FULTON LEWIS LOSES $4,500 IN LIBEL SUIT

BOSTON, Jan. 28—An award of $4,500 had been made today by a federal jury to Louis G. Balsam, of Cambridge, against Fulton Lewis, Jr., radio commentator whom he had sued for $100,000 on a libel charge. The jury deliberated 10 hours.

Lewis, in denying that the statements made in a broadcast a year ago were libelous, claimed they were "substantially true." Balsam, a former professor and dean of men at Reed college, Portland, Ore., was OPA rationing officer in New England.

Americans Starved To Death, Tortured, Slain Brutally By Japanese

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—The War and Navy departments in a joint statement disclosed today that the Japanese "tortured, starved to death and sometimes wantonly murdered" thousands of American and Filipino soldiers who were captured on Bataan and Corregidor. The unprecedented accusations of brutality were based on facts taken from reports of two United States Army colonels and an American Navy commander who escaped after almost a year in enemy prisoner camps in the Philippines.

A total of 5,200 American soldiers died, mostly of starvation, at two prison camps up to October, 1942, and thousands of Filipinos also succumbed. Many others undoubtedly have died since, although figures were not available.

Officer Beheaded

At least one American officer was beheaded, Filipinos were bayoneted, the men were given repeated beatings, with rifles and sticks, tortured by long exposure by the burning sun until they became crazed with thirst and heat and some prisoners were crushed underneath Japanese trucks.

According to the joint statement, "the factual and official story" was based on reports made by Commander Melvin H. McCoy, of Indianapolis, Ind.; Lieut. Col. William E. Dyess, of Albany, Tex., and Champagne, Ill., and Lieut. Col. S. M. Melnik, of Dunmore, Pa.

After he made his statement, Dyess was killed when his fighter plane crashed recently at Burbank, Cal., while he was enroute to the Pacific to resume battle with the Japanese.

No immediate explanation was offered by the army and navy for the sudden, startling release of details about the Japanese "reign of terror" that followed the surrender of American and Filipino forces on Bataan and Corregidor in April and May, 1942.

It was not known immediately what effect the charges might have on the thousands of Americans and Filipinos who still might be alive in Japanese prison camps in the Philippines and the enemy's home islands.

2200 Die In Month

The statement said at one prison camp, Camp O'Donnell, 2,200 Americans died in April and May, 1942, and that at the camp at Cabanatuan, about 3,000 Americans died up to October, 1942.

"Still heavier mortality occurred among the Filipino prisoners of war at Camp O'Donnell," the statement said.

Dyess reported that the Japanese officer commanding Camp O'Donnell announced to the prisoners they were not prisoners of war but captives without rights or privileges.

The ordeal for the survivors of the historic battle of Bataan, began following collapse of American-Filipino resistance in April, 1942, when those who could walk at all were taken on a "march of death" to a prison compound.

"At midnight we were crowded into an enclosure too narrow to lie down," Dyess reported. "An officer asked permission to get water and a Japanese guard beat him with a rifle butt. Finally a Japanese officer permitted us to drink water from a nearby carabao wallow."

"Before daylight the next morning, we were awakened and marched down the road. Japanese trucks speeded by. A Japanese soldier swung his rifle from one of them in passing, and knocked (Continued on Page Two)

He revealed information concerning the extremely bad treatment of the prisoners which resulted in the appalling fatalities. The foreign secretary said that postal cards received from prisoners "are in terms dictated by the Japanese authorities" and that only now has the British government received knowledge of the true situation.

Information in official British hands, he said, leaves no doubt that the true state of affairs in prison and internment camps in the Far East are far different than the prisoners have been able to depict in their writing.

In Siam alone, he continued, many thousands of British prisoners are "being compelled to live under jungle conditions without (Continued on Page Two)

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 — Rose Kramer, who is 44 and weighs 211 pounds, was provided with an opportunity today to reduce at the city's expense.

It all came about when rotund Rose appeared in court on a charge of having attempted to pick a man's pocket—and bungling the job because she was too hefty.

"You're too fat to be a successful pickpocket now," the judge remarked. "Why don't you go on a diet?"

The county workhouse, he decided, would be just the place for robust Rose to retire and reduce. And so off she went to serve a term of six months.

HOOVER OFFERS POST-WAR PLAN FOR AMERICA

Ex-President Asks Lower Taxes, Encouragement Of Small Business

BUREAUCRACY ATTACKED

Labor And Industry Urged To Recognize Problems And Find Solution

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—Ex-President Hoover offered a plan today for a prosperous post-war America and strongly suggested reduced taxes to encourage the increase of small business as the heart of the nation's economic welfare.

He painted a picture of the kind of America he ventured to suggest that would be welcomed by the returning veterans and all citizens.

Bureaucracy should be killed and private industry permitted to resume the country's production because "government cannot find jobs for any great numbers, unless it is going to transform industry into a full socialized state," he said.

If the government were to take over all industry, he said "it means a standard of living of about the present Russian level, and that level is as low as any city or agricultural slum in our country."

Hoover assailed in strong language "ardent" government and private groups who "glide with promises" what he called a "background of force and coercion."

"Trojan Horses"

"We already have," he said "a large number of Trojan horses labelled falsely 'liberalism' and 'freedom', but their insides are stuffed with a mixture of totalitarian economics."

One of America's "oldest and most urgent problems," he said, is in the interests of labor and industry. He urged these groups to recognize this as a fact and to solve it for their mutual interests.

"We cannot come through this post-war period to the promised land unless labor leaders exert their immense power to remove restrictions on individual effort and the use of new devices," he declared.

Hoover said federal taxes after the war of 18 to 20 billions annually will be needed to meet our debt, veterans' pensions, unemployment insurance and other government services. To raise these dollars, he said inflation must be (Continued on Page Two)

FATHER STANDS BY TO DEFEND "THE SPIDER"

CHICAGO, Jan. 28—The father of David Joseph Hearne, Jr., 15-year-old high school sophomore accused of sending an extortion note through the mails, announced today he would engage a lawyer and fight the case for his son.

The note, decorated with a sketch of a dripping dagger and signed "The Spider," was sent to Raymond W. Steffen and threatened the death of Steffen and the kidnapping of his young son if $100 was not paid the sender.

Hearne, Sr., assistant general passenger agent for the Illinois Central railroad, said his son had been questioned at least four times by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and had stuck by his story he knew nothing of the note.

"I believe him," the father said.

FRANCO MUST MAKE UP MIND

U. S. Decides Time Has Come For Final Showdown On Spain's Aid To Huns

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—Authoritative sources revealed today the United States government has decided to seek a showdown with Spain over that country's continued aid to Nazi Germany.

All oil shipments from the Caribbean area to Spain have been ordered suspended for the month of February as the opening step in strong economic pressure that is going to be brought to bear on Gen. Francisco Franco's regime.

The United States government has decided that the time has come for Spain to make up her mind who is going to be the victor in this war, and to act accordingly.

The British government also is understood to share this view, and a sharp stiffening of Britain's attitude toward Spain likewise is expected.

Washington and London have finally lost patience with Gen. Franco's continued aid to Nazi Germany while Madrid privately professes friendship for the United States and Britain.

Recent Spanish assistance to Germany to which the United States and Britain have taken strong exception include:

1. Conclusion of an agreement under which Spain provided about 40 million dollars credit to Germany in payment for the assistance rendered Franco by the Nazis during the Spanish civil war.
2. Refusal to release Italian ships interned in Spanish ports at the time of Italy's unconditional surrender to the Allies.
3. Failure to bring back from (Continued on Page Two)

KIRK RAISES TOO MUCH WHEAT; U. S. FILES SUIT

McKinley Kirk of New Holland and Washington C. H. was named defendant Thursday in a federal court suit brought by Calvin Crawford, U. S. district attorney, which seeks to enforce wheat marketing provisions of the U. S. department of agriculture.

The suit was filed in U. S. district court in Columbus. The action charges that Kirk raised 1,240.7 bushels of wheat in excess of his marketing quota in 1941. The petition asks a total of $807.94 at a penalty rate of 49 cents a bushel.

Crawford's suit also asks that Kirk be required to file with F. K. Blair, Pickaway county agricultural agent, a farm operator's report on wheat raised during the year, which he is alleged to have refused to do.

The suit is the first filed in this district under the wheat marketing program, no longer in operation under A. A. A. rules.

GADGET TURNS CHICK FEATHERS INTO GOOD YARN

CHICAGO, Jan. 28—A gadget that will turn chicken feathers into good yarn was among the inventions received by the Chicago office of the Smaller War Plants Corporation, a government agency, it was revealed today by D. W. Walters, the director.

The agency is conducting a display from January 31 through February 3 in the Chicago offices of some 45,000 patented articles seized from Axis nations.

Many of them, it was said, would be of interest to manufacturers planning post-war conversion of their war plants to peace time production.

OPA CUTS POINTS ON VEGETABLES

Bowles Refuses Plea Of Canners For Holiday On Rationing

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—Ration point values for all major canned vegetables were scheduled today to drop two to four points in February.

Lowering of the vegetable points was announced by OPA Administrator Chester Bowles who denied the recent request of canners for a point holiday, made on the grounds that home-canned vegetable supplies were so large commercial varieties were not moving.

"The supply of processed food available for rationing is inadequate to meet uncontrolled demand," said Bowles. "The indications are that less will be available for distribution to civilians this year than last."

New values for average-sized cans of vegetables are: asparagus, 12 instead of 14 points; beans, all dry varieties, six instead of 10; fresh shelled beans, six instead of eight; beets, two instead of four; corn, regular, eight instead of 10; corn, vacuum packed, 10 instead of 13; mixed vegetables, eight instead of 12; tomatoes, eight instead of 10. Spinach was raised from its present value of two points to six points.

Removed from the ration list were mushrooms, soy beans and grapefruit.

Canned cranberries and apricots were decreased four points, canned plums and prunes, two points. (Continued on Page Two)

RAF Sets Pace For Armada Of Daylight Raiders In Continent Attack

NAZIS FALTER IN ITALY

German Counterattacks Fail To Halt Advance South Of Rome

By International News Service

Huge formations of RAF Lancaster bombers pounded Berlin in strength last night, kindling fires visible 200 miles away and setting the pace for armadas of daylight raiders which roared out soon after dawn to give the quaking continent another heavy pasting.

And while the big four-motored Lancasters treated Berlin to its third saturation assault of the new year, other warplanes gave the key defense island of Heligoland its first attack since Gen. Field Marshal Erwin Rommel ordered civilians to evacuate to facilitate "defense against Allied invasion." Secondary objectives in northern France and western Germany also were hit and mines laid in enemy waters, the air ministry announced.

American heavy bombers escorted by fighter planes attacked a military objective in northern France in the daylight hours following the Berlin assault.

City In Flames

Veteran RAF crews returning from the Nazi capital told of watching leaping flames still blazing in gutted Berlin while the big bombers were 200 miles away from the city en route to their home bases. The raiders encountered dense cloud formations all along the route, extending to heights of three miles in some places.

Ground defenses were labeled "not as strong as usual," with enemy commanders apparently relying on packs of interceptors and flare lanes extending out 10 miles from Berlin itself. Thirty-four RAF planes were lost in all operations.

The authoritative British press association estimated that possibly as much as 1,680 American tons of bombs were showered on the seat of Nazidom.

"Terror Raid"

The German radio acknowledged that it was a forceful block-buster raid by crying out that it was a "heavy terror raid," a phrase usually employed when a particularly severe blow has been struck.

Fierce enemy aerial attacks on the Allied bridgehead south of Rome failed today to stem the Anglo-American advance inland, increasing momentarily the threat to Nazi forces in the Minturno-Cassino front.

With patriots inside the Eternal City reportedly engaging in a flurry of hand-to-hand combat with German occupational forces, spearheads of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army probed inland from the Nettuno-Anzio sector against mounting Nazi resistance.

Strong enemy counterattacks were hurled against the British units which repulsed the thrusts and seized many prisoners.

FALSE SPRING FOOLS TREES IN CHICAGO AREA

CHICAGO, Jan. 28—Unseasonably warm weather combined with "spring rain" left farmers and gardeners of the Chicago area with a major problem today.

While the rain made up for a previous deficiency in moisture, its unseasonable conspiracy with the sun caused tree and shrub buds to swell and fruit vines to blossom.

This was pointed to as a dangerous situation, since a continuation of the warm weather would force the buds to open and leave them subject to the danger of killing frosts.

fray, the Anglo-Americans exacted a heavy toll of the Nazi planes. Furious combat over the Anglo-American beachhead resulted in destruction of 28 Nazi planes. Many of the enemy craft were downed by shore and naval anti-aircraft guns.

Other aerial action over Italy resulted in destruction of more enemy planes, bringing to a record 59 the number of Nazi aircraft downed. Against this figure, an official Allied communique revealed that seven Allied planes were missing.

In the Central Pacific, Allied airmen were exacting a heavy toll of Japanese aircraft which sought to stop the latest series of raids on the Marshall Islands. When the U. S. Army carried out five more assaults against the enemy-held archipelago in two days, some 27 Jap planes were destroyed or "probably" downed without the Americans losing a single plane.

And in the Southwest Pacific, the Allies carried out their heaviest raid of the war against the Admiralty Islands and captured the former enemy base at Natano on New Britain.

In Russia, spearheads of the Red Army were within 40 miles of the old Estonian border, while other Soviet troops were reported fighting in the outskirts of Shymsk, west of Lake Ilmen.

10,000 ATTEND PUBLIC SALE ON MURDER FARM

The Elmer McCoy farm in Fayette county resembled a county fair Thursday when more than 10,000 persons swarmed over the farm during an auction sale of personal property and livestock of the McCoy family. Mr. McCoy, noted Poland China hog breeder; his wife, Forrest, and their daughter, Mildred, were murdered Thanksgiving eve, James Collett, Clinton county, will go on trial February 28 at Washington C. H. for the murders.

W. O. Bumgarner, Jackson township auctioneer, one of two auctioneers who conducted the sale, said the crowd was one of the biggest he had ever seen at a sale.

The sale grossed about $25,000. Property of all sorts, including 84 hogs, personal effects, electric irons which brought as high as $10, an alarm clock which sold for $5.50, a radio, and all other household and personal goods left by the McCoy family were sold at high prices.

The sale was conducted by Dr. J. A. McCoy, brother of the slain Mrs. McCoy, and Collett's wife, a sister of the slain Mr. McCoy.

A grange which served food at the sale disposed of 10,000 hams, 1,400 pounds of sausage, hamburger and hot dogs, and hundreds of pies.

Curious persons were kept out of the barn in which McCoy was shot through the head, Prosecutor John B. Hill declaring that the barn must be kept closed. However, bids were taken on a feed mixer behind which the McCoy body was found.

adequate shelter, clothing, food or medical attention.

Eden said their health therefore is rapidly deteriorating.

"A high percentage are seriously ill and there have been some thousands of deaths," he said.

"It is with the deepest regret that I have to make such a statement," the foreign secretary said, "but after consultation with our Allies, who are equally victims of this unspeakable savagery, the government felt it was their duty to make public the facts.

"Let the Japanese government reflect that in time to come the record of their military authorities in this war will not be forgotten."

Eden's statement shocked the house. Many angry comments were heard later in the lobby.

Forecasts were made that the grim announcement will do more than any urgings made heretofore to rouse the country against Japan and insure merciless British prosecution of the Pacific war in conjunction with the United States.

The man in the street who has always regarded Japan as a distant and perhaps vague enemy of very secondary importance to Germany now has been presented with an exact picture of Japanese barbarity through Eden's statement.

Eden said his majesty's government is completely satisfied as to the authenticity of the information "which it is my painful duty to reveal."

He described an eyewitness of the camp in Siam where prisoners are "skin and bones, unshaven, with long matted hair, half-naked, and having no hats or shoes."

The foreign secretary described as "emaciated" the appearance of prisoners in Java. He said the position in Hongkong is "growing worse" and food allowances of prisoners in Hongkong, Formosa and Korea are "inadequate to maintain health."

Eden provided details of Japanese brutality such as the Shanghai police officer who was tortured until he lost 40 pounds in weight and became practically insane, dying within two days. Also referred to were three British civilians who escaped, but were recaptured and flogged, before being sentenced to death. They then were killed as slowly as possible with automatic pistols.

Details likewise were provided of Indian soldiers who following their capture were lined up beside a road, tied and then systematically bayoneted to death.

avoided to protect private savings and the initiative, efficiency and productivity of the country relied upon to do the job properly.

He would continue high estate taxes in the higher brackets "to prevent inheritance of economic power and the making of playboys." He would lower all income taxes, especially in middle and lower brackets. He would take off all capital-gain taxes to encourage new enterprise. And he said that corporations should be permitted immediately to set up tax-free reserves for reconversion and war obsolescence.

He would plan how to reconvert war industry as soon as Hitler is beaten he said our whole production is not needed to beat Japan.

Hoover said that since "no bureaucracy will ever abolish itself" congress should have ready a joint committee to liquidate war restrictions after the war, gradually to retard inflation until production catches up with demand.

War-torn Europe will offer the American farmer a continuous market, he said, for at least two years after firing ceases. He suggested that the farmer create more crops for industrial use than for food since mechanization of the farm has reduced the need of animal food.

He said we could use 6 million new homes now and he asked labor to take restrictions off factory-built homes to make a house as easy to buy on the installment plan as an automobile.

FOUR MORE OF DRAFT DODGERS FACE SENTENCE

Four more draft-dodging Jehovah's Witnesses were convicted Thursday in U. S. district court, Columbus, for failing to report for induction into the army. Their conviction boosts to eight the number found guilty this week before Federal Judge Robert Nevin.

Each is subject to five years in federal prison.

The latest subject to be found guilty in speedy fashion by federal judges were Vincent Chapman, 26, and Kenneth Badgely, 23, both of Columbus; Robert W. Knight, 19, of Cortland, and James R. Higgins, 18, of Farmdale.

Two Circleville Jehovah's Witnesses, John Wade Grubb and James Matthew Grubb, are scheduled to go on trial next Tuesday before Judge Nevin.

an American prisoner unconscious beside the road.

Go Without Food

"Our guards repeatedly promised us food, but never produced it. Totally done in, American and Filipino prisoners fell out frequently, and threw themselves moaning beside the roadside.

"At three o'clock on the morning of April 12 (two days after the march began) they shooed us into a barbed-wire bull pen big enough to accommodate 200. We were 1,200 inside the pen—no room to lie down, human filth and maggots were everywhere."

Dyess added that the Japs then gave them the "sun treatment," forcing them to sit under its broiling rays all day with virtually no water.

"Our thirst was intense," he continued. "Many of us went crazy and several died. The Japanese dragged out the sick and delirious. Three Filipino and three American soldiers were buried while still alive."

The following day the prisoners were given a handful of rice, the sun torture was resumed and at nightfall the march was started again. Natives who sought to toss food and cigarettes to the prisoners were beaten by the Japs.

On April 15 they were marched to a railroad and 115 were crowded in one small boxcar. Dyess said the "heat and stench were unbearable." On the last leg of the journey, by foot, the strong were permitted to support the weak.

"I made that march of about 85 miles in six days on one mess kit of rice," Dyess said. He reported that others made the march in 12 days without any food whatever.

McCoy and Melnik were taken prisoner on Corregidor and did not take part in this "march of death." The Corregidor survivors were marched through Manila on May 23, 1942 after being forced to jump from barges while still 100 yards from shore.

Terrific Death Rate

The army and navy statement revealed that after the prisoners had been at Camp O'Donnell for one week, the death rate among American soldiers was 20 a day and among Filipinos 150 a day. After two weeks it increased to 50 a day among Americans and 500 a day among Filipinos.

"To find men strong enough to dig graves was a problem," the statement added. "Shallow trenches were dug to hold 10 bodies each. Men shrank from 200 pounds to 90. They had no buttocks. They were human skeletons."

Frequently the prisoners were given the sun treatment, and those strong enough were forced into labor details. Many times men did not return from work.

In June the Americans and Filipinos were separated and the former were taken to Cabanatuan concentration camp on Luzon. At one time three American officers attempted to escape but were captured.

"Their Japanese captors beat them about the feet and legs till they could no longer stand," the statement added, "then kicked the officers and jumped on them."

"The next morning the three Americans, stripped to their shorts, were taken out on the road in full view of the camp, their hands were tied behind them and

Nazi. This matter is being given active consideration by the American and British governments.

De Gaulle also is understood to have taken up with Churchill the question of arming the French underground movement.

The impression has been given in French circles that the United States and Britain were reluctant to arm the underground for fear of civil war in France following its liberation.

It can be said on high authority that such is not the case. Military and not political considerations have been responsible for the reluctance of the American and British authorities to supply arms in substantial quantities to the French underground.

The Anglo-American military chiefs have questioned the advantage of taking the steps which would be necessary to arm the underground on a large scale.

However, there may be some change in the situation soon. In any event, it will come as no surprise to informed Washington sources if the underground warfare in France reaches an unprecedented peak in the near future.

Some reports received in Washington indicate the Germans may be planning to launch a systematic quasi-military campaign to smash the French underground before the all-out Allied invasion of western Europe gets under way.

NEW BOILER INSTALLED

think of a boy who never will...*

THINK OF HIM—and ask yourself this question: Which of you—this boy or yourself—could more truthfully have said today: "I'm sorry—I've done all I can"?

To that, there is only one answer. For no sacrifice any of us made this day can ever begin to measure up to his final and supreme sacrifice—his very life.

So, when we're asked to buy an extra $100

Think it over—and help get this war over sooner by doing your share.

Buy an extra $100 War Bond tomorrow! At least $100. Better $200, $300, or even $500. You can afford it.

OPEN LETTERS

TO EVERY AMERICAN

PATRIOTS: Residents of Pickaway county are being called on to buy $1,244,000 in War Bonds during the Fourth War Loan campaign. The drive lasts to mid-February and the national goal is $14,000,000,000.

The quota set for the county is a little less than in the third sale. The quota should, and must, be reached.

The money is here. It is not being put to use if it is stored away, and it ought to be put in government bonds.

It is up to individuals to buy the sum asked this time.

There are three indisputable reasons why these individuals should use the money in their pockets, their hiding places at home, and their checking accounts to help finance the war.

As the amount of money in circulation increases, the supplies of civilian goods are being depleted rapidly. This increases the peril of inflation, which is another way of saying the value of the money will be less—that it will buy less. It means that money spent in an inflationary period will not bring as much return as it would after the war, when the supply of money and of goods is more in balance, and that the more that is spent now the faster the money will drop.

Secondly, reconversion slowdowns and their resultant unemployment are not too far ahead. It is a good time to invest earnings safely—to prepare for a rainy day.

Thirdly, the more that is invested in War Bonds the less will be the need for additional taxes, which are designed to finance the war and to hold down inflation. That will be a good argument about March 15.

And as another war bond campaign starts, The Herald would like to repeat something it has said before, many times in fact. That is, that the workers who have enlisted in this campaign of sales of War Bonds are doing so wholly out of patriotic interest. You are not doing them a favor by buying, and certainly no one should purchase bonds reluctantly.

It seems to us that every individual who can raise the money to buy one or more bonds should step forward willingly and quickly and purchase them with the least amount of effort on the part of the salespeople. It should not be necessary to "run you down" to get your signature and your check. Save the time of the hard working salespeople by buying quickly and to the limit of your ability.

It would seem unnecessary to point out to Pickaway county people that War Bonds are the safest and best investment on this earth. No matter how you deplore waste of money, money that ought to be used strictly for the war effort and nothing else, no matter what objection you try to find to the purchase of the bonds, you still owe it to your country and the brave boys and girls who are fighting for you to buy bonds, and as many as you can finance.

It is a poor time to bring up any objections, with the war well on the way to being won; the war has to be financed, and the boys and girls have to be backed up at home and your purchase of bonds is the only way you can do it.

Let us hope that the Pickaway county quota will be quickly reached; that our people will come forward as one and say "Here is every dollar I can spare to buy bonds; in buying, I am doing my patriotic duty; it is true, but at the same time I am helping myself, for there is no other place to put the money where it will be as safe. You don't have to hunt me up, or to waste your time, I'm buying early and getting my name checked off your list, Mr. Committeeman."

Buy early, buy to the limit of your ability!

Let it not be said that Pickaway county this time failed to reach its goal.

CIRCUITEER.

TO DAIRY EMPLOYEES

FOLK: You did a very nice job this week when you made a $50 contribution to the Junior Chamber of Commerce to help it in its promotion of Ted Lewis Recreation Center. You didn't put any strings on your gift, you just turned it over to the Jaycees to use at the playground for whatever purpose the organization wished. It was a splendid gesture, and it will be appreciated by the youngsters who enjoy the playground during the Summer and by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Many thanks.

CIRCUITEER.

TO C. OF C. MEMBERS

ALL: Your annual meeting is scheduled Tuesday evening, and it promises to be a highly interesting one. Reports of the Chamber's projects during the last year, other reports, a splendid talk by George O'Brien of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, and other matters of interest are on the schedule. All members of the Chamber of Commerce and their wives should be present. A telephone call to Mack Parrett, secretary, will provide a reservation for you.

CIRCUITEER.

TO FARM LEADERS

OFFICIALS: Many factors point toward additional farm machinery and other equipment being made available for you in order to help you carry on your 1944 Food for Freedom program. On the other hand, if Uncle Sam's army or navy need extra equipment of the type that requires steel and bearings and other items that go into farm goods, then you will have to get along with a smaller supply of goods. Already the percentage of 1941 production which manufacturers are permitted to build for you has been reduced by 20 percent. It is now 60 percent of the 1941 amount. The navy issued a great order for landing craft after the 80 percent figure was arrived at. If more landing craft is needed, or if other things are needed for the services, the farm machinery will probably be cut again. Many items left on the ration list last year have been cut off for 1944; some of the goods for which you needed a certificate a year ago can now be bought ration free, if you can find it. I hope that sufficient machinery will be provided to permit you to carry on your Food for Freedom program without any hindrances.

Nazi Surrender in Italy | Army, Navy Airmen Ponder
Improbable but Possible | Who'll Sock Tokyo Next?

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Rumors swarm like phantom bombers in the wake of the forthcoming cross-channel offensive to smash Hitler in 1944 and end the war in Europe.

Fundamentally, the forthcoming blow is perhaps the most widely-publicized projected military operation in history.

There is no doubt in the minds of most Washington observers that the Allied armies of liberation will sweep across the English channel when the stage is set for the mammoth drama of blood, sweat and tears—and, incidentally, the weather is right.

When Good Arrives—? That was the commitment made to Marshal Josef Stalin at the Teheran conference.

The attendant armada of rumors includes one that the Germans may permit their front in Italy to collapse in order to bring the Anglo-American armies into Berlin before the Russians arrive.

It is no secret that the Germans would go to almost any extreme to keep the Red armies off the soil of the Reich.

However, any such German desire is doomed to be frustrated by the unity of the Allied—American, British, Russian—forces.

Therefore, the dopesters and arm chair generals in Washington say, Germany's only alternative would be to collapse the Italian front and possibly the cross-channel front when it is opened.

There is just enough logic, from the Teutonic point of view, in the rumor to make it not impossible in a warring, topsy-turvy world of impossible developments.

Spring and summer will tell the story.

AIRMEN IN WASHINGTON are wondering whether the Army

Air Corps or the Navy will be the first to carry out the long-promised bombing of the Japanese mainland—expected sometime this year.

Both the Army and Navy, bombsites cocked for Tokyo, shared honors for the original bombing of the Japanese capital in April, 1942.

The twin-engined Army B-25 (Mitchell) bombers that carried out the raid were ferried within striking distance of Hirohito's palace aboard the aircraft carrier Hornet.

Since the Navy has been rushing to completion mighty aircraft carriers, and from their decks are flying long-range fighters, torpedo bombers and dive bombers.

Meanwhile, the Army has pinned its hopes on the B-29, a new super bomber version of the Flying Fortress, which Gen. H. H. Arnold, Air Corps commander, said would get into action this year.

The Japanese radio has offered no answer to this question. Recently it warned its listeners that they could be bombed by carrier-based planes.

Later it warned that Japanese cities would be bombed from the Aleutians by long-range planes.

Army and Navy airmen don't care which branch of the service gets the next crack at Tokyo.

Their attitude is "the more the merrier—the sooner the better."

POLITICAL OBSERVERS SEE LITTLE CHANCE that congress will grant President Roosevelt's state-of-the-Union request for a national service law.

The chances seem pretty strong that the Austin national service bill will die in the senate military committee, where hearings have been begun.

Foreshadowing the doom of the measure offered by Senator Warren R. Austin (R.) of Vermont, is Chairman Robert R. Reynolds (D.), North Carolina, of the committee.

Reynolds is an arch foe of the bill, which he says "would give us here in America what Hitler and Stalin have got."

If the measure ever reaches the floor, one of the bitter legislative battles of all time will be precipitated.

Gallbladder Useful As A Storehouse

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE ORGANS we house within our body might be compared to our relatives. There are all kinds of relatives and all kinds of organs. The regular hardworking kind—the heart is representative of him, works all his life and never gives any trouble until he is old or something very considerable annoys him. The artistic, excitable, moody, flighty one—the brain surely. The silent one that never, or almost never, gives any trouble—the spleen.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Then there is the problem relative—useless, lazy, always making trouble—certainly the gallbladder is the analogy for him.

The gallbladder practically never troubles itself on our consciousness unless it has decided to go on a spree. Then, no matter what else we are doing or what we want to do, we have to get up and put on our clothes and go down to the police station and bail him out. And a sorry looking dejected bum he is at such times—full of bile and venom and with a hangover you could cut with a knife.

Function of Gallbladder

Lots of people get along well without the gallbladder—glad to get it out of the house, never knew what genuine comfort was until it was gone.

Is the gallbladder of any use at all? Does it perform any useful function?

There is always somebody to stand up for the black sheep of the family. Let us see if anything favorable can be said for the gallbladder.

The liver, one of the largest and busiest organs of the body, has many functions, not the least of which is the formation of bile, which is carried by a series of ducts to the intestine where it is employed chiefly in the digestion of fats.

Nature, like any thrifty person, guards against the rainy day. The liver is larger than it need be and produces more bile than we can ordinarily use. So it provides also a storehouse for the extra bile which can be called on when needed—and that storehouse is the gallbladder.

Observing It Work

It is possible to give a person a dye by mouth which is concentrated in the gallbladder and which will cast a shadow on the X-ray plate. So we can watch it at work. As soon as a meal gets into the intestine, especially a fat meal, the gallbladder contracts and empties its contents into the intestine.

So a physician, if he wants to drain the gallbladder by Nature's method, gives the patient a high-fat meal. If he wants to soothe it and keep it quiet he gives a fat-free meal.

When the gallbladder has been removed surgically the main bile duct usually swells up and takes the place of the reservoir for bile the gallbladder once was.

Whenever there is any stagnation in Nature trouble is likely to breed. And in between meals the still quiet gallbladder full of bile is a fine spot for an infection to light. This may cause simple inflammation, or produce mucous around a bit of which a gallstone may form.

But the actions of the gallbladder raising Cain deserves an account by itself which we will give soon.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. E.:—How important is it to keep on a diet for diabetes? Should you stick to diet only or must every diabetic use insulin?

Answer:—It depends on how severe the diabetes is. I should say that 60 per cent of all diabetics can get along on diet alone. But if you can't get enough nourishment through diet, use insulin so you can eat more. But diet is still the basis of diabetic treatment. How important— it depends on whether you think life or death is important.

E. K.:—What is a blue baby? What is the life expectancy of such a child?

Answer: A blue baby is cyanotic from a congenital defect of the heart. Dr. White, of Boston, reported a case of a man with such a defect who lived to the age of 67, but most of the cases do not reach 30.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

MALLORY laughed so hard, when Carlos said that he and Manuella did not trust John and William Smith, that her guests were puzzled. The brown eyes of her two Mexican friends and the shrewd blue ones of Sandy rested upon the blond girl with unblinking stares. She did not blame them; hysteria was predominant in the sound of her intense amusement.

Prism entered with the Escardi cocktail, passed them hurriedly to the guests, then stopped beside her mistress. "Take one!" she commanded softly.

Manuella lifted her glass. "To our North American friends."

"And to our Latin American ones," added Sandy, with an easy grace.

Manuella's glance rested on his face while she took the first sip of her drink. But Carlos' glance rested on Mallory's face, making everything, she decided gratefully, just about perfect.

Thankful for the cocktail Prism had shoved into her hand, Mallory took a deep sip. It treadled her. She was searching her mind for a suitable and safe topic when her accompanist addressed her.

"Tell us, Pet, just why were you bubbling like demented Dinorah a minute ago? Who are these strange brothers who cause such commotion?"

Mallory did not get a chance to answer. The somewhat stunned silence of both Manuella and Carlos came to an end.

"They are social climbers," said the Mexican girl, scathingly. Her beautiful olive face showed horror.

"They are the aspirin salesmen," said Carlos in what for him was unusually fast English, "with too much money to be only the aspirin salesmen."

Manuella leaned forward. "They make mysterious trips."

"Yes," echoed Carlos, excitedly. "They are the most suspicious characters."

"They are murderers," Mallory Baker's voice was so calm that it held a clamminess.

Once again her three guests were spellbound. Sandy recovered first. "Mallory dear," he hastened gently, "this is not the time for jokes." Your friends do not understand your deadpan humor as I do. Miss— He gestured helplessly toward the young Mexican girl, but continued to speak to the singer. "You did not tell me the last names of your guests, so I shall call them Manuella and Carlos."

In spite of her perturbation, Manuella took time for a fleet smile and to say, "I want you to call me Manuella."

Carlos said nothing. His eyes were wide as he watched his hostess. She, in turn, watched the rim of her cocktail glass.

"Take it easy with the kidding, Mallory. Your guests are serious."

"And so am I." The blond girl finished her drink and clasped her hands tightly. "It is true, Sandy."

Carlos' handsome features were thoughtful. "Yes, it could be so possible. They are cruel men."

"We know so well," seconded Manuella. "They managed an invitation to our rancho. We were having dozens over a week-end. My father caught John abusing one of our horses." She smiled, a distinctly unpleasant smile. "I think my father would have liked, right then, to do a little murder himself. But he did not. He waited until that evening, when all his guests were assembled in the patio for the before-dinner wine. Then, in front of everyone, he told John Smith to leave and to take his brother with him. Imagine the insult. Dismissed the thieves servants. The look John gave my father!" She drew her fingers along her olive-white arm. "It made me feel as if a snake were crawling right here."

Memory made her shudder. "I could not help being a bit sorry for William. He skulked like a craven dog."

"You would not have felt sorry for him," said Mallory, "if you could have seen him helping his brother smash a man's head against the pavement."

"No!" cried Sandy. "Who's kidding now?" derided the singer.

Neither Manuella nor Carlos appeared surprised. Instead, they were intent, motionless except for raising and lowering the glasses which Prism refilled often enough to hear most of the conversation. It's morbidity delighted her. "Now we're getting somewhere," her look proclaimed. Evident also in her behavior was approval of Velvet Name.

She fairly hovered over him.

The reluctance to talk about her experience on the Laredo-Monterrey highway—a reluctance put there so recently by Richard Blythe—faded as Mallory realized she had found her allies. She had known she would. She had felt it intuitively, despite the jibes of her maid, and now here was the solution to her problem. What better assistance could she have than these new friends who already hated and suspected the two cement-faced brothers?

In a low, but full voice, the blond girl began relating the story of the murder, exactly as she had seen it, exactly as it had gone through her mind in an endless chain of gruesome pictures. While she talked, Prism quietly served dinner on the long, low table in front of the davenport and on those beside the large armchairs. The four ate without paying much attention. Any other time Prism would have resented this disregard for her superb cooking. Tonight she did not mind.

Except for exclamations of surprise and horror, Mallory was not interrupted, until Prism served black coffee and chartrouse.

Carlos was the first to speak. "You are in danger, Mallory." His voice held such worry that it sounded like pain. In those few words was such proof of his devotion that Mallory felt her cheeks flame as if she were sitting before a fireplace. Manuella noticed also; the muscles around her eyes tightened as she alternated fast glances between Carlos and her hostess.

"She can't be," cried Sandy. "It is too incredible."

"Yes, she is," snapped the Mexican girl. She stopped staring at Carlos and Mallory with that tense speculation and turned to the young man beside her. "Don't be a baby, Sandy. They suspect her, the cold-blooded demons. They are watching her. There could not be that many coincidences." Agitation was making the cigaret smoke puff from her exquisite nose in fast clouds.

"But it seems so absurd," persisted Sandy, "for them to kill a man right on the pavement, then drive away."

"Our highway is no crowded now," said Carlos, in his silver-bell voice. "They were not expecting a tourist to drive along. In the dusk they considered themselves safe."

"Besides," Manuella demanded of the young accompanist, "how do you know the dead man was left on the highway? I am sure he was not." She seemed extremely confident of her own education. He was dragged from that fatal spot—perhaps buried, perhaps put beneath a few rocks, perhaps just left for the buzzards. "My mouth was grim." They work swiftly in our country."

Pictures of those hideous birds perched on fence posts a back to Mallory Baker's mind. On her trip down she had seen them, waiting placidly or circling low over some unfortunate victim from a herd, watching for the end of its struggles.

"It is hazardous," resumed the Mexican girl, "for Mallory to try to deceive these fiends. I am certain they mistrust her pretended ignorance. She must not make the mistake of trying to outwit them; they are too treacherous. Nothing must happen to Mallory. I like her too much."

"Now I've heard everything," mused the blond girl. But she managed, through her amazement, to smile gently at Manuella.

"You see, Sandy," prompted the Mexican girl, "there is so much desolate country. In a plane you do not see it as you do on land. Perhaps a body would not be found for days, if ever. As for blood spots along the road—what are they? From some goat or burro."

The pianist nodded, then turned to Mallory. "You do get in the darndest messes—et."

"Ah," breathed Carlos, "but we are going to help her out of this."

"Yes," Manuella's eyes sparkled even more than they did ordinarily. "Their strange actions, their trips, the vague, almost untraceable rumors about them. Now we are learning. Since the episode at the rancho, Carlos and I have stalked them in an amateurish way. Now we shall attend to it professionally. Now that I know they are dangerous—with the hatred they have for my father—I cannot wait to see them behind bars."

"Please, Manuella," the singer insisted. "I want you to wait. Just until after Wednesday, when they will be back."

"And when Richard Blythe will be back also," she was thinking.

But Richard Blythe was back sooner. It was almost midnight when Mallory saw him in an upper hallway of the Montecito.

The program will be opened with invocation by the Rev. Carl Kennedy, pastor of the Presbyterian church. The dinner will be served by ladies of the church. Music will be provided by Circleville school boys and girls under direction of C. F. Zaenglein.

A. V. Osborn, Chamber of Commerce president, will speak briefly and the annual report of the secretary will be made. Judson Lannan, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, will also speak before Mr. O'Brien is presented by F. K. Blair, county extension agent.

Jesus Uses His Power to Help

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 30 is Mark 4:35-5:43, the Golden Text being Mark 4:40. "Why are ye fearful? have ye not yet faith?")

JESUS HAD been teaching the multitudes on the shore of the Sea of Galilee, outside of Capernaum. After the people had gone, He and His disciples got into boats and started across the sea.

"And there arose a great storm of wind, and the waves beat into the ship, so that it was now full." Jesus was tired, and had lain Him down in the back of the ship and was fast asleep on a pillow.

His disciples were terrified, thinking they would all be drowned, so they awoke Him, saying, "Master, carest Thou not that we perish?" The Lord arose and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm.

Jesus then said to His disciples, "Why are ye so fearful? how is it that ye have no faith? But they were frightened and said to one another, 'What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey Him?'"

Man Possessed by Demons
When they landed on the other side of the sea, "into the country of the Gadarenes," they saw a man who was possessed of an unclean spirit—in fact, a number of spirits. He was completely insane, and so strong that no one could restrain him. He had often been bound with strong fetters, but he broke them all, even chains, and wandered among the mountains and tombs, crying and cutting himself with stones.

This pitiable creature no sooner saw Jesus than he ran to Him and worshiped Him, although at the same time he cried—or the demons within him did—"What have I to do with Thee, Jesus, thou Son of the Most High? I adjure Thee, by God, that thou torment me not."

Jesus ordered the evil spirits to come out of him and asked the man his name. "My name is Legion," he answered, "for we are many." The Roman Legion was the Roman instrument of oppression in Palestine. The spirits entered Jesus to send them into the bodies of a great herd of swine that was feeding near by. Jesus gave permission, as the soul of the man was surely of more value than the swine; and the spirits entering into their bodies, the swine ran down a slope headlong into the sea and were drowned.

The owners or caretakers of the swine were frightened, and more-over they were angry about the loss of the pigs, and they asked Jesus to go away. Jesus and the disciples prepared to recross the sea in their boat, but the man who was healed came to Him and pleaded to be taken with them. Jesus, however, told him to go home and tell his friends of the miracle.

Ruler Asks Help
When they landed on the other side of Galilee, one of the rulers of the synagogue came quickly to Him and fell at His feet. His name was Jairus, and he said, "My little daughter lieth at the point of death: I pray Thee, come and lay Thy hands on her, that she may be healed; and she shall live."

Not all the leaders of the synagogue were Jesus' enemies, you see. This man believed and had faith. As Jesus followed the ruler, a woman who had been ill many years and steadily grew worse, came near to Him and timidly touched His garment, saying to herself, "If I may touch but His clothes, I shall be whole." At once she felt her illness leave her.

Jesus felt "virtue" go out of Him, and He turned and asked who had touched Him. The disciples, seeing the crowd around, could not answer, but the woman came, trembling, and fell at His feet, telling Him all. "And He said unto her, Daughter, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace, and be whole of thy plague."

Just then some came from the ruler's house and said the little girl was dead, but Jesus said to the father, "Be not afraid, only believe." When He came to the house he said to those within, including professional mourners, "Why make ye this ado? the damsel is not dead, but sleepeth."

They laughed at Him, but, taking only the father, mother and three disciples, He went into the room, and taking the child by the hand, He said, "Damsel, I say unto thee, arise." And straightway the child walked, for she was 12 years old, and Jesus told them not to tell anyone, but to get her something to eat. Truly, in this lesson, Jesus uses His power to help.

SCREEN STARLET GUEST

Julie Gibson, who had a regular job singing with a lieutenant governor before she was signed to a movie contract, will carry the feminine honors on the Bob Crosby-Les Tremayne show Sunday evening at 9:30 p. m. over NBC. Julie's political affiliations are explained by the fact that Vic Meyer, present lieutenant governor of Oregon, once led a popular West Coast dance orchestra and hired her as his featured vocalist. He liked her voice but not her name and Camille Soray was traded for Julie Gibson. When he discarded his baton and decided to follow his political ambitions Julie was on her own again. In a short time she joined Joe Penner's radio show, singing with Jimmie Grier's orchestra. Hollywood was handy so Judy decided to take her chances in the studios. Before the year was out she made her debut as a singer in "The Feminine Touch" followed by "Here We Go Again." When the screen version of "Let's Face It" was produced auditions were held on the Paramount lot and Julie got the job. She will soon be seen in "Going My Way" and "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay". "The Authority on Authorities"

THREE KINDS OF TRICKS

IN THE play for a No Trump contract, there are really only two ways to take tricks. One is with the highest card of a suit played on a trick and the other is with an established card, after the rest of its suit is gone. In a suit contract, there is one more way, ruffing with either the only trump on a trick or the highest trump. Normal order of events, when all factors are present in a suit contract, is to do some ruffing first, drop the outstanding trumps next, then use the high and establishable cards of some side suit or suits.

2♠	Pass	3♥	Pass
3NT	Pass	4♥	Pass
4NT	Pass	5♥	Pass

As soon as the response of 5-Hearts to the Blackwood 4-No Trumps showed South that North held two aces, that fact, plus what he already knew about the six-four division and the general strength of North's hand from the 3-Hearts force, was enough to cause his grand slam bid.

West's lead of the heart K, giving ing South his first look at the dummy, made it clear that he must use all of the standard ways to take tricks, without any fancy business to make it possible. He had to get rid of a losing heart, which could be played on a spade, but he also had to divert himself of two losing diamonds, which could be done only by ruffing them with North's two trumps.

Notice how he went after ruffs first, trumps second and suit third. Winning the opener with the heart A, he laid down the diamond A, ruffed the 3, led to the spade Q, ruffed the diamond 6, came to his hand again with the spade J, hoping neither defender originally had a spade singleton, then dropped trumps in three rounds. The spade 2 to the A and then the K enabled him to discard the heart 8, leaving trumps for the last two tricks. Changing the order of events at all would have made his contract impossible.

Tomorrow's Problem

What is the name of the play necessary to make 4-Hearts on this deal after West leads the spade 7?

Health Association To Expand Activities During Year

SALE OF SEALS PROVIDES CASH BEYOND GOAL

Elizabeth Dunlap Again Elected To Serve As Unit Secretary

CAMPAIGN SETS RECORD

Mrs. Crites Files Report On Collections Made In All Communities

Declaring that work of the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health association will be carried on during 1944 in a greatly expanded manner, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap, the organization's executive secretary, informed members of the association at their annual meeting Thursday that the 1943 Christmas seal campaign was the most successful ever conducted here.

The association has received $2,338.17 with more money still to be sent in. This total is $538.17 above the goal of $1,800 established when the drive opened just before Christmas.

"The Tuberculosis and Health association," Miss Dunlap said Friday, "expresses sincere thanks and appreciation to all the city and township volunteer workers. Without their loyal support the seal sale would not have been so successful."

Miss Dunlap said there are about 500 letters still outstanding and she added that it is possible that some of the persons who have forgotten their Christmas health seals or who have delayed sending in their money will do so.

The executive secretary, who was employed for another year, said that added interest in the work being done by the organization had resulted in the splendid increase in purchases. She pointed out that many contributors had doubled their usual contributions. "This means," she told members of the association, "that we can carry on a more extensive program in 1944."

The association's budget for work in 1944 includes $800 for tuberculosis work in the city and county; $200 for Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, for use in health and nutrition work in the county; $200 for Mrs. Mae M. Groom, city health nurse, for health and nutrition work in Circleville; $250 in the general expense account, and $783.72 in an unanticipated emergency fund.

The budget was set up after all outstanding bills were paid. Collection of the $2,338.17 was almost equally divided in city and county areas, Circleville purchases of health stamps totaling $1,186.86 and rural purchases amounting to $1,151.31.

Mrs. George L. Crites headed the Circleville seal sale committee, while each township had its chairman. The report of collections from each village and township, as compiled by Miss Dunlap, follows:

Washington, Mrs. Marvin Stealy, chairman; township, $31.72; school, $9.64.

THREE SPEAKERS ON PROGRAM OF ROTARY CLUB

Three interesting talks were heard Thursday noon by Circleville Rotarians, speakers including Corporal Lawrence Gridlein of Baltimore, Md., a patient at Fletcher General hospital, Cambridge; Charles W. Peters, Institute speaker, and F. K. Blair, Pickaway county extension agent.

Corporal Gridlein, wounded several times in North African fighting, appeared in the interest of War Bond purchases, urging Rotarians to support the war effort by buying bonds. He discussed some of the engagements in which he participated, including Kasserine Pass, Mateur, and many other battles during the drive that sent Rommel out of North Africa. The soldier, who appeared during the week at Institute programs, also discussed the hospital care given wounded men, and the value of plasma provided by the Red Cross through its blood bank operation.

Mr. Peters, a humorist and philosopher, proved highly entertaining with his talk, many amusing incidents being recounted.

Mr. Blair gave Rotarians information concerning the value of Farm Institutes in the community, outlining the work done in these meetings.

CORPORAL AMEY FINDS GRAVE OF HERO BROTHER

Corporal Edward Amey, husband of the former Eloise Hanley of Circleville, has informed his wife that he has located the grave of his brother, Lt. Col. Herbert Amey, 31, of the U. S. Marine Corps who lost his life in the invasion of Tarawa in the Gilbert islands.

Corporal Amey, who is stationed in the Gilbert Islands in the U. S. army air corps, told his wife that he had found his brother's grave.

Lt. Col. Amey, whose wife and baby live in San Diego, Cal., and whose parents live in Ambler, Pa., was killed November 20. He had served nine years in the Marine Corps, being attached to the Second Marine Division at the time of the invasion.

Amey at 31 was one of the youngest lieutenant colonels in the Marines.

Lt. Col. Amey saw his first service in China, returning from that station in 1939. His only visit in Circleville was a brief one overnight when he was enroute to his Ambler home from the west coast.

NEPHEW OF CITY WOMAN HELD PRISONER BY HUNS

Staff Sergeant Glenn J. Lawhorn, 22, of Chillicothe, a nephew of Mrs. E. W. Keyes, East Main street, is a prisoner of war in Germany. The soldier's mother, Mrs. Dora Lawhorn, Chillicothe, received a notice from the War Department Thursday that young Lawhorn, missing since December 12, was taken prisoner when his bomber went down over the Reich.

Last word received directly from young Lawhorn, a gunner, was in a letter dated December 9, just four days before his ship was put out of action.
